Injured North Quincy Hockey Player Progress 'Exceeding Expectations'

Online Fund Established To Help Family With Medical Expenses

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A North Quincy senior hockey captain left nearly paralyzed after a serious neck injury during a game earlier this month is doing well and "exceeding expectations" in his recovery, his mom told The Sun this week.

Connor Kulig sustained a severe neck injury in the Red Raiders' Jan. 8th game against Scituate at Hobomock Ice Arena in Pembroke. The 17-year-old forward was checked by a Scituate opponent as he crossed the red line tumbling head and neck first into the boards in front of the North Quincy bench. The impact fractured and dislocated Connor's cervical vertebrae. The force also moved his spine, dissecting his vertebral artery.

After being rushed to Children's Hospital in Boston, Connor underwent nearly five hours of surgery to repair his spine. He was soon making miraculous progress as movement of his extremities returned little by little. One week later, he stood up by himself and also took a few steps.

He continues to make progress and was recently transferred from Children's Hospital to Spaulding Rehabilitation in Boston.

In a statement Monday, Connor's mom, Dawn, said her son is "doing well, though he has a bit of a long

Koch Eyes Field House At Bus Site

Mayor: City Interested In Acquiring Hancock Street Bus Depot Land If MBTA Relocates To Burgin Parkway

By SCOTT JACKSON

If the MBTA follows through with plans to move its bus depot from Hancock Street to Burgin Parkway, Mayor Thomas Koch said he would be interested in building a field house at the former location.

MBTA officials are considering moving the bus depot from 954 Hancock St. to 599 Burgin Parkway, formerly home to Lowe's. Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci is hosting a community meeting on the proposal at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 29, inside the auditorium at South-West Middle School, 444 Granite St.

County Seats Attracting Quincy Democratic Contenders

Phelan Joins McDermott In Sheriff's Race; DiBona To Seek Register Of Probate Seat; Others Considering Bids

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Three more Quincy Democrats have announced campaigns for seats in county government in this fall's election and more could follow in the weeks ahead.

The hopefuls are eying bids for Norfolk County sheriff, register of probate, county treasurer and Norfolk County commissioner.

Officially making announcements as candidates this week are former Mayor William Phelan, Councillor at-Large Noel DiBona and former city clerk Joseph Shea. Phelan is seeking the Democratic nomination for county sheriff. DiBona is running for the Democratic nomination for register of probate. Shea, an incumbent, says he will be campaigning for another term as county commissioner.

Phelan is the second

Quincy Democrat to announce a run for county sheriff. He joins Patrick McDermott who announced his bid for sheriff last November. McDermott, a former city councillor, is vacating the Register of Probate seat he has held since 2003 to run for sheriff.

Campaign announcements by Phelan and DiBona appear on Page 11 in this week's Quincy Sun.

The field for sheriff and register of probate thus far also includes candidates from other towns in Norfolk County.

James Coughlin, a Democrat from Dedham and retired State Police detective, is also running for sheriff.

The winner of the Democratic nomination for sheriff would advance to the final

Liang Appoints City Council Committee Chairpersons

McCarthy To Head Finance • Mahoney To Chair Ordinance • DiBona To Lead Oversight

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council's committees will have a different look this term, with each of the three committees of the whole getting new chairpersons.

The appointments, made by Council President Nina Liang, were finalized last week. The council will continue to have three committees of the whole — finance, ordinance and oversight — and 14 committees with five members each.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy is the new chairman of the finance committee and Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain will serve as the vice chairman. Cain had been the committee's chairman during the past two years; then Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes, who did not run for re-election in 2019, was the vice chairwoman during the last term.

Councillor Anne Mahoney is the new chairwoman of the ordinance committee and Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, previously the council president, is the committee's new vice chairman. Liang had been the chairwoman of the committee the past two years with Councillor Noel DiBona as the vice chairman.

DiBona is the new chairman of the oversight committee and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci will serve as its vice chairman. Palmucci had been the chairman of the oversight committee for the last six years and Mahoney was the committee's vice chairwoman during the last term.

Cain is the new chairman of the community engagement committee. Other members of the five-person committee include Liang (vice chairwoman), Croall, Mahoney and Ward 6 Councillor William Harris. Liang had been the committee's vice chairwoman since its inception four years ago.

New Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan Jr. will serve as the chairman of the downtown and economic growth committee; other members of the committee include McCarthy (vice chairman), Croall, Mahoney and Palmucci. Hughes, the former Ward 5 councillor, was the committee's chairwoman the last two years.

McCarthy is the new chairman of the education committee and will serve on the committee with Mahoney (vice chairwoman), DiBona, Harris and Palmucci. Mahoney had been the chairwoman the past two years.

Harris will continue to serve as the chairman of the environmental and public health committee. Joining him on the committee are Croall (vice chairman), Cain, McCarthy and Phelan.

Cain is the new chairman of the housing committee and will be joined by Palmucci (vice chairman), Croall, Harris and Phelan. Palmucci had been the chairman of the committee last term.

Phelan is the new chairman of the library and historic places committee and Cain its vice chairman. They will be joined by Harris, Liang and Palmucci. Hughes had been the committee's chairwoman last term.

Mahoney will continue as the chairwoman of the municipal technology and information management committee with Phelan as its new vice chairman. Rounding out the committee are Harris, McCarthy and Palmucci.

Phelan is the new park and recreation committee chairman and Harris its vice chairman. They will be joined by Croall, DiBona and Palmucci. McCarthy had been the committee's chairman the last two years.

Harris is the new public buildings committee chairman and Palmucci will serve as its vice chairman. Also on the committee are Cain, DiBona and Phelan. McCarthy had been the committee's chairman last term.

Palmucci will continue to serve as the chairman of the public safety committee and will be joined by Harris (vice chairman), DiBona, Mahoney and Phelan.

Harris will continue to be the chairman of the public works committee. Joining him are Croall (vice chairman), Cain, DiBona and Phelan.

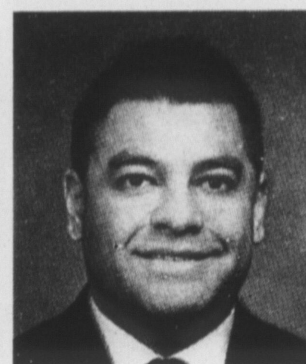

Palmucci will be the chairman of the rules committee, a chairmanship he also had last term. Joining him on that committee are Cain (vice chairman), Mahoney, McCarthy and Phelan.

ANNE MAHONEY

Croall will remain the chairman of the senior citizens committee and will be joined by DiBona (vice chairman), Cain, Harris and McCarthy.

DiBona will stay on as the chairman of the veterans services committee and Harris will stay its vice chairman. They will be joined by Cain, Croall and McCarthy.

Ross Lot Development Start Seen This Year

By SCOTT JACKSON

Construction of a mixed-use development on the Ross Lot in Quincy Center could begin this year, Mayor Thomas Koch said in a recent interview.

The City Council in June 2019 approved a land disposition agreement with Quincy-based FoxRock Properties, granting the company a portion of the municipally owned lot for the development. The project would also be constructed on the land at 77 Parkway, home to what is sometimes known as the Commonwealth building, which FoxRock previously purchased.

Koch, in an interview last week, said the demolition of that building is imminent and foundations for the buildings that will replace it could be in place this fall. Already underway is construction of the new Generals Bridge, which will connect Cliveden Street to Burgin Parkway and is being paid for by the state.

"FoxRock is preparing to take down the Commonwealth building, which will be the next phase over there," Koch replied when asked about the future of the Ross Lot.

"There is one tenant left, Coffee Break, and her departure is imminent...I know they [FoxRock] have already started the mitigation part in other parts of the building - asbestos and lead and all that stuff. Before you take a building down, you have to do all those things. I know that is ongoing as we speak.

"I think this year there is going to be a lot of visible activity on the Ross side with the building coming down, the bridge being completed, and you will probably see, hopefully by the fall, foundations going in for the new proposed buildings."

FoxRock plans to build three buildings in the area - a 200,000-square-foot medical office building, a 140-room hotel and a 196-unit residential building. The buildings would be located adjacent to the MBTA tracks with the medical office building next to an extension of Cliveden Street and the residential building near Granite Street. The hotel would be located in between those two.

The medical office building would sit atop a 400-space garage, according to the plans presented to the council last year, and another 120 spaces would be provided elsewhere on site. FoxRock would also lease some 400 spaces in a new municipal garage nearby. The ground floors of each building would include a mix of retail spaces.

The new municipal garage would be located south of Cliveden Street, in the area of IHOP, and could include room for 1,400 vehicles - twice the size of the 712-car garage on the former Hancock Lot that opened in December. Koch said the city is in the process of looking for an architect to design the new garage and was hopeful the state would help finance the project.

"We're just going through the RFP process now to pick a designer. That expectation for numbers is much bigger than the Hancock Lot - we're probably looking at double size of the garage on that side, because it's got to accommodate an awful lot of development on the Ross side," the mayor said.

"We're going to be looking for state participation in financing that garage as well."

It is unlikely that the garage will include any underground parking levels given its proximity to the MBTA tracks, Koch said, though it could be built above the tracks.

"I would propose that

Newport Avenue Building Approved

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Planning Board approved a developer's proposal to construct a seven-story apartment building on Newport Avenue in North Quincy.

The board on Jan. 8 approved the request of Ken Phung to construct the building at 29-33 Newport Ave. The project site, which is located on the block bounded by Newport Avenue on one side and Stratton Way (formerly Arlington Street) on the other, contains 37,500 square feet of land in an Industrial B zoning district.

The project also requires approval from the Zoning Board of Appeals.

The building's lower two levels will include 130 parking spaces, with 104 apartments on the floors above. Christopher Harrington, the developer's attorney, told the Planning Board in December the number of units had been reduced from 107 to 104 and the number of parking spaces increased from 121 to 130 so that the ratio of units and parking spaces would be consistent with the development next door.

Access the equity in your home or free up cash monthly Here's how...

Maybe you'd love to access the equity in your home but you're nervous about taking out an adjustable home equity line with interest rates rising. Or maybe you went with a shorter term and that monthly payment has become a burden. This is something that could work for you - refinance into a new 30-year mortgage. With 30-year rates still so low, lower than fixed-rate equity loans, it's definitely a home equity loan/line alternative. And also a way to free up cash monthly and make your life easier. Would a new 30-year loan be right for you? It's easy to find out. Jackson Will Be Acting Fire Chief in December 2018; he succeeded Joseph Barron, who had been the chief for 10 years.

Jackson, one of five deputy chiefs within the department, was previously named acting chief in July 2018 after Barron's retirement and led the department in that capacity until Cadegan's appointment in December of that year. Mayor Thomas Koch, who is responsible for appointing a new fire chief, said Jackson would once again take on the role of acting chief after Cadegan retires.

"I'm going to name Joe (Jackson) the interim (fire chief)," Koch said in a recent interview. "He's the administrative deputy. He's there every day doing it, so why would I do something different? It doesn't make sense. Part of the role in that job of being the administrative deputy working with the chief every day, is when the chief is out, you're running the operation. The other deputies are all in suppression."

Koch said he has asked Patricia McGowan, the city's director of human resources, to look into options to hire a new fire chief. The mayor said an assessment center would most likely be brought in to vet potential candidates; the same process was used in 2018 to select Barron's successor.

"I've had my HR director looking into my options. I'm pretty sure it's going to be an assessment center again," Koch said. "We pick an assessment center that Civil Service sanctions and then there is a process. There would have to be interviews set up - some written, some oral. They run scenarios by the candidates."

Koch said he would like to promote from within the department.

"I think we've got some capable people there," he stated.

The search will be initially open to the deputies within the department, the mayor said. The department's 14 captains would be given a shot at the position if not enough deputies are interested in the promotion.

"I think I would follow the spirit of how Civil Service works, so if there weren't enough deputies interested, we could open it up to the captains that were. But, if there are enough deputies interested, I don't think we would have to go through that," Koch said.

There is no timetable for how long the appointment process will take, the mayor added.

Koch said Cadegan was loved and respected by the department's firefighters.

"He was a very low-key, quiet guy, who went up through the ranks very quietly, but I saw nothing but tremendous respect from him by all the guys. He was a very thoughtful - very capable of course, he wouldn't be there if he wasn't - but a very thoughtful, very fair-minded guy. I was quite impressed," Koch said of Cadegan.

"I knew Jack Cadegan over the years, not so much in his professional status. He is also a very good carpenter on the side and he's a good friend of my cousin's, went to high school with my brother Joe. I didn't know him on the professional level until he got further in the ranks.

"I'm sad to see him go," Koch continued. "He was a great stabilizing force there. The guys loved him, respected him, and he did a great job."

"I'll give you an example. After that Newport Ave fire, I got a note from him thanking me for all we've done for the department, because that fire would have been a lot worse if did not have manpower we did as quick as we did. Who does that? He's quite a guy and I wish him well."

In addition to searching for a new fire chief, Koch said the city is in the process of hiring new police officers and firefighters. The city is looking to hire roughly 16 new police officers to fill current and anticipated vacancies caused by retirements and could hire some 30 firefighters, including 16 to fill new positions funded by a federal grant and the remainder to take vacant positions.

"We're going through that process as we speak - the hiring process," the mayor said. "We got the federal grant, of course, with the fire [department] and we've got a lot of guys retiring, so we're going to be putting a significant number of men on the fire side. Police, we've got a significant number retiring - some planned, some unplanned."

"One of the challenges keeping up the staffing is constantly filling these," Koch added. "It takes so much time from the time of the exam, the background checks, the physicals, the psychologicals, then the academy. You have to wait for the academy and then they go through x amounts of weeks of academy. It's like a half a year anyway before the person hits the streets."

"So, I'm more inclined to go a little heavier because you don't know who else is going to be getting out, because we're always chasing our tails filling vacancies."

"The police chief...he's had conversations with me. He'd like to get the patrolmen number up a little in the new budget, so we'll look at that."

The Fire Department now has a full complement of firefighters, the mayor added, which is critical when responding to emergencies.

"The good thing is we are maintaining for the first time in decades a full complement on the fire [department]. All of the pieces are in. Rescue [1] is fully in," Koch said.

"I'm the mayor, the admin, the CEO - everyone wants more all the time... but the reality is, with the fire service, when they are responding, it matters with the amount of manpower they have, the equipment they have, as soon as they get there. Minutes matter - seconds matter when it comes to dealing with emergencies like that, so, that note meant a lot to me from the chief, because it matters on that stuff."

Why Palmucci Will Not Support A Paper Bag Ban

The City Council recently passed Council Order 2019-125 which bans single use plastic bags, which will have a positive environmental impact on the City. A recent effort by QCAN, a purportedly pro-environmental lobbying group, has criticized the Council Order as being destructive to the environment because the measure did not also ban paper bags, and are lobbying for an amendment to do so.

I appreciate their position on this matter, but I respectfully disagree. Here is why I will not support a paper bag ban or a ban on flatulence.

I voted to ban plastic bags for the following reasons:

1) They pollute our land and ocean. A great variety of animals, land and especially marine, can choke to death on bags after mistaking them for food, experiencing much pain and distress. As a coastal community we have an obligation to help protect the ocean. If swallowed whole, animals may not be able to digest real food and die a slow death from starvation or infection. Plastic bags are a highly visible, ugly component of litter.

2) Plastic bags are typically used for a short period of time, but take hundreds of years to break down in landfill. While plastic bags can be recycled, only a tiny proportion of plastic bags are collected and reprocessed. Plastic micro-fibers have been found in human tissue as a result of leaching into our water supply and food sources. These bags are also made from fossil fuels.

Paper bags, meanwhile, are starch-based, biodegradable (or 'compostable'), and consume less than one-third of the energy to produce than its plastic alternatives. Unlike single use plastic bags, biodegradable bags will completely breakdown. QCAN would have the entire City using reusable bags, but remember, to get the full greenhouse gas benefit from a reusable 'green bag,' it must be reused over 100 times. Most of these bags also do not easy breakdown in nature.

While I appreciate QCAN's sentiment, I do not believe they are providing full and accurate information about this matter. Banning plastic bags is a good thing, QCAN indicating that the City Council has made the environment considerably worse is a farce. Living by your own set of facts may work in Washington, but I don't think it flies in Quincy. QCAN has taken an extreme position that the only good policy is an absolute one that ignores many of the ancillary negative consequences a paper bag ban would bring.

Next perhaps, they will seek to have flatulence banned in Quincy. After all it has been estimated that collectively the world population, as a whole, releases about 73 metric tons of methane and 1,000 metric tons of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere by farting daily. This is equivalent to roughly 1,000 people flying from New York to Los Angeles, daily. Using QCAN's logic, the City Council should ignore all else but the direct environmental costs. When I make policy decisions as a councillor, I weigh many different factors and try to find pragmatic common-sense solutions to the issues facing our City.

I will not support a ban on paper bags until QCAN solves the devastating environmental "farting crisis" caused by the extra bean burrito at La Paloma's.

Everyone is entitled to their opinions, and I appreciate it whenever someone improves my understanding by presenting real and honest facts and information. Unfortunately, that is not what QCAN has done here. I believe the ban on single-use plastic bags to be a policy that will have a positive impact for the City's future.

Scenes From Yesterday

Bird St., Looking West, Quincy, Mass.

THIS POSTCARD of Bird Street in Houghs Neck was postmarked in 1930, but it was published before 1920. Taken from near what is today's Edgewater Drive, the view is towards Macy Street, which crosses about six houses down. At the time of this picture, most of the cottages in Houghs Neck were still summer residences. Most of those shown here have been somewhat altered over the years, some to gain a better advantage of their water views, but all are now year-round homes. The one on the right has been replaced. The street looks pretty narrow here and this section of Bird Street was accepted by the city in 1934. What appears to be a street across the foreground is misleading. There never was a street there. This is one of a series of black and white Houghs Neck picture postcards that were artistically augmented by the publisher Charles A. Litchfield who lived in Merrymount.

Urgers Governor Baker To Stop Compressor Project

(Editor's note: A copy of the following letter sent to Gov. Baker was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication.)

The Honorable Charlie Baker, Governor of Massachusetts
State House
Boston, Massachusetts

Dear Governor Baker:

I am once again writing to you as are the hundreds of residents on the South Shore who have expressed their grave concerns of our environment and health if you allow the Enbridge compressor station to be built in North Weymouth. Our State and Federal Representative along with Mayors of Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree are in opposition to this compressor for several reasons: one, and the most important reason: it will impose a dire health hazard for the area residents, according to recent statement by Doctor Philip Landrigan, distinguished globally known pediatrician, who was instrumental eliminating the lead from fuel and paint, just to mention this.

This area is both residential and industrial area and already heavily polluted area. The compressor would add additional pollutants, such as Benzene, and Formaldehyde to the ambient air on daily bases, stated by Doctor Phillip Landrigan, now newly appointed Director of Integrated Science and Society at Schiller Institute at Boston College, and he states further: "this compressor will affect the health of Quincy, Weymouth, Hingham residents." Dr. Landrigan urges all of us to write to Governor Baker and his Environmental Secretary, to stop this compressor project. Furthermore, the National Grid has gone on record in their recent press release that they do not need this compressor.

I am once again reminding you that the Fore River basin is designated as an area of Environmental Justice community; governed by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts by the Environmental Justice Policy. It states: "agencies bear the responsibility to preserve and protect the natural resources, community by community, watershed by watershed. All Communities must have a strong voice in environmental decision making."

It is now evident that thus far your Honor have not taking in consideration the scientific information and the community voices and our state and federal representatives.

Finally, I refer to the warning message of Dr. Philip Landrigan in YouTube and the articles in Boston College Magazine, Summer 2019 Edition, along with print media stating this compressor will affect the health of our children, grandchildren and generations to come if you allowed Spectra to proceed and ignored all the warnings from the scientific community.

Governor Baker, please stop the Spectra Energy/Enbridge project. It has been proven now many times over, North Weymouth is a wrong location.

Sincerely,

Anneli Johnson

People Do Want To Live In Quincy

I totally agree with the assessment made by Norfolk County Register of Deeds Bill O'Donnell that "People Want to Live In Quincy," as the page one headline read. Quincy in many ways is positioned in just the right spot to succeed. It is close to Boston, highways and then throw in our beaches.

I have watched the City of Quincy build itself up. Folks are moving to Quincy perhaps more now than leaving for elsewhere. What Quincy needs to watch out for is not to get too carried away with the high-end, high-rise and high-priced conditions of the city to its immediate north.

Quincy is both urban and suburban. It has a great public school system of which I still work for as a substitute teacher. I enjoyed my 25 years of living in Quincy and even much longer visiting a number of my mother's Charlestown Irish side of the family. I have never given up the idea of returning back across the Neponset Bridge but even as an outsider now, I see everything that O'Donnell was commenting over. Things are looking good, make them look good for all.

Quincy needs to learn from Boston on what is good and what should be avoided. Quincy must protect its working family, small homeowners and rental base, too. Avoid this building boom's boom that has overtaken many of Boston's neighborhoods forcing people away from their homes.

Carrier USS Hancock Launched At Shipyard

In the first launching of the year at the Fore River Shipyard, the USS Hancock, the last of a fleet of four aircraft carriers built here in Quincy since the war started, slid down the ways at Quincy's shipyard.

Mrs. DeWitt Clinton Ramsay, wife of Rear Admiral Ramsay, was the ship's sponsor. Governor Leverett Saltonstall and Mayor Charles A. Ross spoke at the launching.

The Hancock was the sister ship to the second Wasp, the second Lexington and the Bunker Hill.

MERCHANTS WAR BOND DINNER A SELLOUT

The Jan. 25 War Bond Dinner sponsored by the Quincy Merchants Association at the Neighborhood Club, is a complete sellout, Patrick L. O'Malley, general chairman of the Quincy War Finance Committee, said, with applications for additional tickets being turned down.

O'Malley also said that well-known actor Joel McCrea will attend the dinner. McCrea, one of Hollywood's most popular movie stars, will attend the dinner with his wife, movie actress Frances Dee.

Tickets to the affair were obtained by the purchase of a $500 war bond.

USE OF POLICE SURVEY PLEDGED BY COUNCILLORS

Seven members of the City Council pledged themselves to use the Police Survey report as a guide in the proposed reorganization of the Quincy Police Department at a dinner meeting of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association.

Councillors attending included Council President Frank Orcutt, William Jenness, Christian Burkard, Clifton Baker, Amelio Della Chiesa, George McDonald and Carl Anderson.

Sandrea Lovelock-Williams' Artwork On Display At MPL

During the month of February, the Milton Public Library is hosting two art exhibits. The public is encouraged to view.

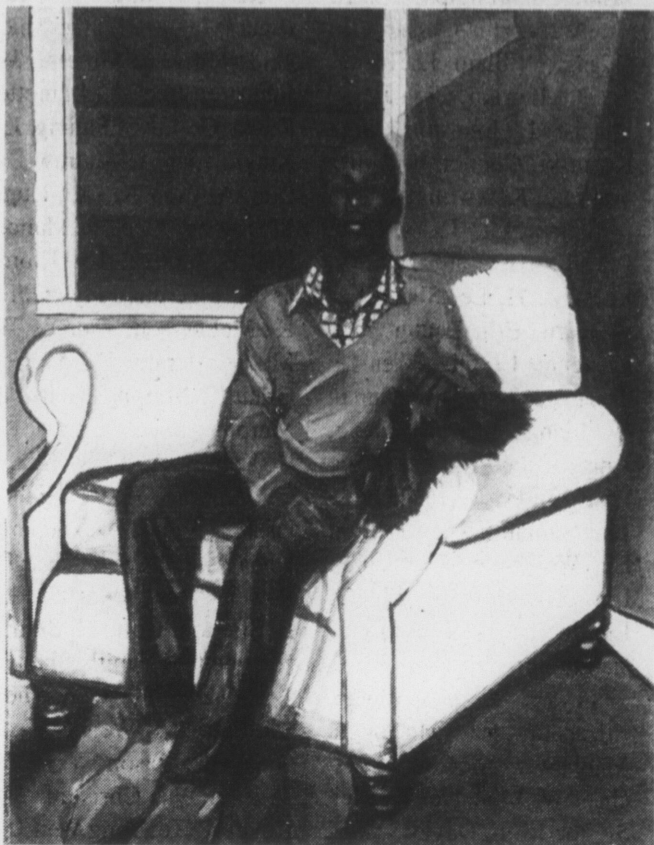

In the first floor Wotiz Gallery the library will host the work of a talented painter named Sandra Lovelock-Williams, and also in February there will also be a display of African wall hangings by artist Beth Neville to be shown on the Lower Level both inside and outside our Keys Community Room.

In the Wotiz Gallery from Feb. 1-29, Ms. Lovelock-Williams will show her lovely paintings which depict people, still life images, and much more. Sandra teaches art at the Community Charter School Cambridge and has worked at several other educational institutions, including as a high school teacher for the Cambridge Ridge and Latin School.

Lovelock-Williams has a degree in Painting and Art Education from the Massachusetts College of Art in Boston. In 2019 one of her paintings, which was on display as part of the Fay Chandler Emerging Artist Awards at Boston City Hall, was chosen as the year's winner as "Best in Show." This painting won over the jurors for its overall excellence.

The subject, a young man, stands in a corner and is dressed up, putting his weight on both feet. His demeanor seems somewhat hesitant with a downward gaze. The jurors described the painting as "a portrait of a young man on the edge of adulthood."

Sandra's painting is further described as follows from the City of Boston website: "The execution is brilliant. Williams makes rich color choices, uses masterful brush strokes, and is confident in her work with light and shadow. She gives us an excellent sense of depth and texture. Williams' work shows both control of her medium as well as great potential for the future. Well done!"

A reception for the Sandra Lovelock-Williams Exhibit is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 20th from 6-8 p.m. in the Wotiz Gallery.

The second exhibit at the Milton Public Library is on display now through March 31 in the lower level near and in the Keys Community Room. This display will show cloth banners created by Milton artist Beth Neville as African ethnic art, and they are beautiful, bright-colored pieces. The title of the exhibit is the "Great Wall."

America's rich cultural heritage has many sources around the globe. Beth celebrates one of them with this exhibit as she will display eight hand-stitched cloth banners. She was inspired by African sculpture depicted in a book called African Sculpture Speaks (New York: Hill and Wang, c1961) by New York's Ladislav Segy, which shows wood carvings of animals, humans, and spirit ancestors. Her inspiration also comes from cloth originally hand-woven by the Asante and Ewe groups of Ghana.

Much of the fabric used to create this art comes from cloth that Beth has collected for decades, or that she has hand-painted. These strands weave together to make a unique art synthesis. Ms. Neville has lived her entire life in multi-cultural communities and she expresses that in her art, as she embraces all cultures as part of her rich American family. The display will be broken up into two separate installations, one in the outside hall area and the other in the Keys Room. The Milton artist Joyce Caggiano helped to stitch the borders on the banners, and the metal ornaments on them are from Nigeria.

There will also be a free and open reception for the African Wall Hangings Exhibit with Beth Neville on Tuesday, Feb. 18th from 6-8 p.m. on the Lower Level.

For more information about displaying art at the library, go to www.miltonlibrary.org or call Jean Hlady, Head of Adult Services/Reference at (617) 698-5757, x.3. The Milton Public Library is located at 476 Canton Ave.

'Tarot Card Reading' At Milton Public Library

The Milton Public Library has rescheduled a popular program for adults which was originally planned for Jan. 14th.

This event, called "An Introduction to Tarot Card Reading" with speaker Sally Cragin, will be held in the Keys Community Room on Tuesday evening, Jan. 28th from 7-8:30 p.m. There is no sign-up required and this program is sponsored by the Friends of the Milton Public Library. It is free and open to the public.

For more information, go to the library's website:

The Shalom Children Activity Program (SCAP), a year-long program sponsored by a collaborative partnership of South Shore synagogues and Jewish organizations, will hold its next event, "Tree-mendous! - Celebrate Tu B'Shvat, the Jewish New Year for the Trees," on Sunday, Feb. 9, from 2:30 to 4 p.m., at the Mass Audubon Museum of American Bird Art, 963 Washington St., Canton.

Families with children up to age 8 who are looking for fun, social, engaging activities infused by Jewish values and experiences are invited to join SCAP for a round-robin of crafts, cooking, and other tree-, fruit- and nut-centered "learning by doing" activities. Short nature hike weather permitting.

The program is free and begins at 2:30 p.m. with check-in. At 2:45 p.m., the "Tree-mendous" program begins. Participants will depart the museum at 4 p.m.

This event is for families with children up to 8 years old (siblings welcome), and is free, but registration is required.

The program will take place in the main building of the Mass Audubon Museum of American Bird Art in Canton.

For directions, visit www.massaudubon.org/learn/museum-of-american-bird-art/location-directions/museum-of-american-bird-art.

This event has a maximum of 50 children, with priority by date of registration. Registration for this event is at our website at www.shalomcap.com. For questions or concerns, contact: shalomchildrenactivityprogram@gmail.com.

For parents looking for some kind of Jewish family connection, SCAP's programs and events are a way to experience, create, and celebrate together while meeting other families living in your area. No-cost once-a-month programs take place through June 2020 from South Boston to the South Shore, and participants are welcome to come to one or all.

SCAP's partners include Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, Milton; Temple

Beth David of the South Shore, Canton; Temple Beth Shalom, Hull; Cong. Sha'aray Shalom, Hingham; B'nai Tikvah, Canton; Temple B'nai Shalom, Braintree; and JCC of Greater Boston. The Shalom Children Activity Program is supported in part by a grant by CJP's South Area Planning Committee.

Stuffed Pepper Casserole

By MARIE

If you are a fan of stuffed peppers then you know that they are not easy to make.

Today's recipe will help you make stuffed peppers in a delicious casserole. You can throw all of the ingredients in one skillet and this entrée is together and cooked in no time at all!

Recipe and Directions:

- 1 pound ground meat, (beef, turkey or pork)
- 2 cup of diced large green peppers
- 2 cups of diced large red peppers
- 14.5 ounce can of diced tomato with juices
- 2 cups of beef stock
- 8 ounce can tomato sauce
- 1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
- Salt and pepper to taste
- ¾ cup cheddar cheese or your favorite shredded cheese
- 1 teaspoon of basil (or any favorite herb)
- 2 tablespoons olive oil

- 1 small yellow onion, diced
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 cup of uncooked rice

In a large skillet over medium heat, heat the olive oil and sauté garlic, onion and meat adding diced pepper when meat is almost done.

After adding peppers, salt and pepper cook for about 5 minutes until peppers start to soften, and stir for a few minutes.

Then reduce heat to medium and add tomatoes with juice, tomato sauce, beef stock and Italian seasoning.

Stir until well combined and bring mixture to a boil cooking for 15 minutes on low heat.

Add the cup of uncooked rice add cook until rice is done. Return to boil and reduce heat to low.

Cover and simmer for 25 minutes until rice is tender.

Remove from heat and sprinkle with cheddar cheese.

Let cheese melt a bit before serving.

Grain Free Herb Sesame Crackers

By SUSIE

Crackers are something many folks crave (salty crunchy) with either a dip or with some cheese, and end up eating too many or eating the kind out of a box made with refined flours and sugars.

These crackers are gluten and grain free, loaded with protein, as well as fiber, calcium, healthy fats, and some important vitamins and minerals not found in your everyday crackers.

Did you know that a serving of sesame seeds contain more calcium than a glass of milk? These are easy too!

Grain Free Herb Sesame Crackers

- 3 cups almond flour (I use Honeyville brand, you can get online, it is by far, the best and fluffiest)

- 1 1/2 tps sea salt
- 1/2 tsp garlic powder
- 1/2 tsp onion powder
- 1 cup sesame seeds
- 2 tablespoons olive oil or avocado oil
- 2 eggs

Preheat oven to 350. In one bowl combine dry ingredients and in the other combine eggs and oil. I like to mix well with a mixer or immersion blender. Combine and mix well with wooden spoon.

Place dough between 2 pieces of parchment paper and roll to about 1/16 inches. Take off top piece and cut into squares with sharp knife or even a pizza cutter. You can even use cookie cutters.

Bake about 12 minutes until lightly golden.

How To Get Rid of Stinky Feet

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

If you, your kids, or anyone else in your household has stinky feet, the stench can cause the whole family to block their noses. But, why is it that some feet smell so much worse than others?

The truth is that foot odor doesn't really originate from the feet. The smell comes from the bacteria that reside on those feet and in the dirty socks and grimy shoes that cover them. Those bacteria get rid of waste just like people do. And it's the waste that smells so unpleasant. When feet sweat profusely, they can play host to some extra-smelly bacteria.

If your feet reek, it may be no consolation to know that foot odor is rarely a sign of a health problem. It's still unpleasant and embarrassing. Fortunately, there are ways to get rid of the germs and that awful odor. As a matter of fact, anything that stops your feet and shoes from developing into breeding grounds for bacteria will help.

There are a variety of things you can do to help keep your feet odor-free.

1. Keep them clean. Scrub your feet every day. Basically use a washcloth, soap, and water and be sure to get between your toes and dry your feet well before putting on your socks and shoes. If your shoes or sneakers are washable, toss them into the washer.

2. Have a soak. If soap and water just aren't sufficient enough, try soaking your feet once a week for up to 20 minutes. Experts recommend a solution of warm water and either vinegar or Epsom salt.

3. Keep dry. The bacteria that make their residence on your feet and in your footwear flourish in moist places. So if you keep your feet dry, bacteria won't feel welcome there.

Try these tips:

- Change your socks if they get wet or sweaty.
- Wear socks and shoes that let your feet breathe. Use athletic socks with moisture-wicking technology. As for footwear, mesh athletic shoes or real leather are your best bets. Avoid shoes made of synthetic materials.

• Use powder or cornstarch in your shoes. Some foot-odor powders are deodorants; others absorb sweat.

4. Air them out. This applies to both your shoes and your feet. Spend time barefoot to let your feet air out. Alternate which shoes you wear so that they have a chance to dry completely between uses.

5. Use disinfectant. Spray a general household disinfectant in your shoes and on the insoles and then let them dry. It might also help to let them dry in the sun.

As previously mentioned, foot odor is rarely a sign of a health problem, but sometimes it can be triggered by an infection. Visit your healthcare provider if you see any signs of infection or if the smell does not improve. Additionally, if your feet are also extraordinarily sweaty, it may be a condition called plantar hyperhidrosis. This foot sweating may be so excessive that it can interfere with daily activities. Testing can be done to determine if you have this condition and how severe the problem may be. If you or a family member has hyperhidrosis, a doctor may recommend a prescription antiperspirant, prescription cream, or nerve-blocking medication to decrease the sweating. If those options don't prove to be successful, Botox injections may be of some benefit. Keep in mind that even if you have a medical condition that leaves you prone to foot odor, taking steps to keep your feet clean and dry will help with the smell.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Two New Directors Join Manet Community Health Center Board

The Manet Community Health Center Board of Directors recently welcomed two new members.

Jane Kisielius, MSN, RN, NCSN and Grace Murphy-McAuliffe were installed with their terms beginning Jan. 1.

At the December Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors the re-election and confirmation of its slate of officers for 2020 occurred, including Quincy resident and attorney Robert J. Griffin as board president; Haverhill resident and grant writer for the South Shore YMCA John Galluzzo as vice president; Quincy resident and attorney Ivan Wong as secretary and East Walpole resident and general manager at ATI Flowform Products Stephen Keches as treasurer.

"We are truly fortunate to be able to welcome Jane and Grace to an already dynamic and committed board," Griffin said. "Their commitment to health access, perspectives and expertise will help us to continue our work to guide the health center as it grows and delivers thoughtfully designed patient and community focused programs and services; and further lives up to its vision to be an innovative, compassionate, welcoming health center that is a provider, employer, partner and charity of choice."

An experienced nursing professional with deep roots in the Quincy community, Kisielius is a wellness instructor at the South Shore YMCA, where she teaches a variety of wellness self-management classes for people of all ages. Prior to that, she served as the Prevention and Wellness Trust Fund coordinator for the Quincy Health Department, working closely with Manet and other community partners to implement prevention and wellness programs in Quincy as part of the Quincy Weymouth Wellness Initiative. Previously, she worked for Quincy Public Schools for 21 years, serving first as a school nurse and, most recently as coordinator of Health Services. Kisielius earned her master of science in community health nursing at Boston University and her bachelor of science in nursing from Boston College. She lives in Quincy.

"As a community health nurse and from my experience with school children and their families, I know the important impact that Manet has within the communities they serve and I am eager to be a part of the board to do what I can to help guide and strengthen the health center for the future," Kisielius said.

Also with strong Quincy connections, Murphy-McAuliffe is a financial services executive who spent 25 plus years in the world of commercial banking. She is currently the director of Finance, Administration and Leased Housing for the Quincy Housing Authority, a position she has held for the past five years and which serves over 3,000 households with an annual operating/subsidy budget of $37 million. She is also the president of Quincy Parks Conservancy, a private not-for-profit organization that advocates for Quincy's parks and open space.

In addition to her background in finance, Murphy-McAuliffe has more than 13 years of experience in health care administration and governance, having served on the board of Quincy Medical Center for 10 years, with the last three years as its chairperson. Her past board experience also includes the Massachusetts Hospital Association and Bay State Community Services.

"Manet is a vibrant community health center which offers so much to its residents and businesses," Murphy-McAuliffe said. "I am pleased to be a part of this community and honored to be joining the board of Manet Community Health Center. Manet has a long history and tradition of embracing the patients and communities it serves to ensure unfettered, and equal access to health care for everyone."

Murphy-McAuliffe lives in Quincy.

Returning members to the Manet Board are:

Anne Bisson, director of Department of Human Services and Council on Aging for the City of Taunton and resident of Fall River; John Brothers, of Braintree, executive director of the Education and Training Branch of the YMCA of Greater Boston; Samantha Chen of Quincy and analyst at Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts; Zachary Eaton, of Quincy, finance manager for Newton Automotive; Lawrence Flanagan, retired and resident of Canton; Dr. Neda Hovaizi, DDS, of Milton and owner and practicing dentist at Lumiere Dental Spa in Quincy; Linda Kelly, of Quincy, disabilities advocate; president of Manet Health Foundation Joseph M. Reardon, of Milton, vice president for Community Development and Advance Planning at Keohane Funeral Home; Henry, "Hank" Rittall of Quincy, director of Operations Reporting and Analytics at Teladoc Health; and Manet CEO Cynthia Sierra serves as a non-voting member of the board.

and likely face Republican incumbent Jerry McDermott of Westwood. Jerry McDermott was appointed to fill the sheriff's seat formerly held by Quincy Democrat Michael Bellotti in December 2018 until the 2020 election. The winner of the race for sheriff this fall would serve until 2022 and then be eligible to run for a full six-year term that year. The sheriff's current annual salary is $151,200.

The field of candidates for county Register of Probate could also draw some other local Democrats.

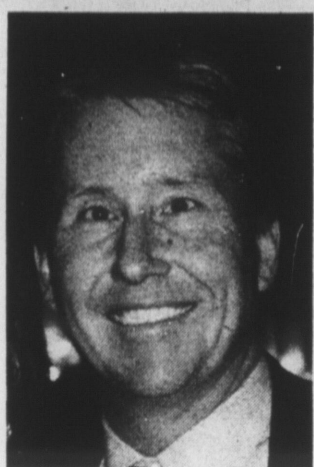

School Committee member Kathryn Hubley told the Sun she is considering a run for register of probate. Hubley topped the school committee field last fall winning her third four-year term on the school board.

Former Ward 4 Councilor and City Council President Jay Davis — a Quincy attorney — is also thinking about running for register of probate, according to political observers. Davis could not be reached for comment.

There is already a second announced Democratic candidate for register of probate. Colleen Brierley, an attorney from Norwood, has sent out letters to Democratic activists in the county announcing her candidacy.

The winner of the Democratic primary for register of Probate would advance to the final election Nov. 3 to square off against the Republican nominee. The Nov. 3rd winner would be elected to a six-year term. The salary for register of probate is currently $155,500 annually.

DiBona told The Sun if he is elected Register of Probate he would serve the

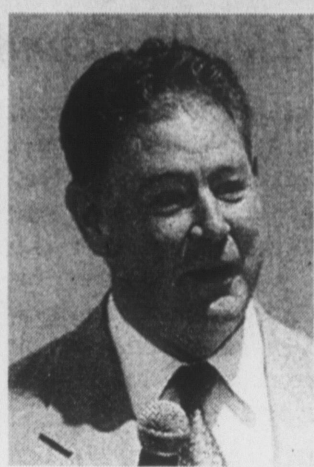

PATRICK McDERMOTT
Democrat
Candidate for County Sheriff

remainder of his current city council term which expires at the end of 2021. DiBona was re-elected last fall topping the field of candidates for councillor at-large.

The race for Norfolk County treasurer could also attract at least one local Democrat. Ward 2 Councilor Brad Croall is rumored to be considering a run for county treasurer. Croall, a former city council president, declined to comment on the speculation that he would be a Democratic contender for treasurer.

The treasurer's position is currently held by James Timilty, a Walpole Democrat and former state senator. Timilty was appointed county treasurer by Norfolk County commissioners in May 2017 and retained the post after winning a special election in 2018. Timilty succeeded Joseph Connolly of Weymouth who resigned after serving 14 years. The winner of the county treasurer's race this fall will be elected to a full six-year term. The annual salary is $135,000.

Two of the three Norfolk County commissioners are seeking re-election. Joseph Shea, former city clerk and

WILLIAM PHELAN
Democrat
Candidate for County Sheriff

a Quincy Democrat, is seeking re-election to a four-year term. Commission Chairman Francis O'Brien, a Dedham Democrat, is also seeking re-election.

The annual salary for county commissioner is $40,000.

Nomination papers for county office will be available in February. A candidate must collect at least 1,000 signatures from voters from their own party and/or unenrolled in the county to appear on the primary ballot.

Quincy Democrats have fared fairly well in county races in recent years. Winners include Michael Bellotti (sheriff), Tim Cahill (county treasurer), Michael Morrissey (district attorney) and John Gillis and Joseph Shea (both county commissioner). However, some Quincy Democrats have lost bids for county seats including current Mayor Thomas Koch who came up short running for county treasurer in 2002.

Koch, a former Democrat who is now an unenrolled voter, said he would publicly support some Quincy Democrats who are vying for county seats this election cycle. They include Patrick McDermott, Noel DiBona and Joseph Shea who have announced campaigns for county sheriff, register of probate and county commissioner respectively.

NOEL DiBONA
Democrat

In the sheriff's race, Koch told the Sun that he committed to Patrick McDermott more than a year ago when he asked for his support. "Pat was on the City Council in Quincy. I've had a relationship with Pat. I never thought there could be another Quincy candidate in the mix (for sheriff) at that point.

"I'm a man of my word. I committed to Pat, so I'm with Pat in the sheriff's race. I told that to Bill (Phelan) and he understood," Koch added.

The mayor said he will be backing DiBona in the race for register of probate. "Noel approached me to ask me for my support and I told him I would be supportive," Koch said.

Asked how he may get involved in the campaigns, the mayor said "I may host some fundraisers. In my view, they are going to get what they are going to get out of Quincy. I am no help to them in other towns in the county. We'll see what happens."

JOSEPH SHEA
Democrat

Asked how difficult it is to run county-wide, Koch said: "Certainly Pat McDermott has a good understanding because he's been sitting in a county seat. I tell you it's a whole different ball game (seeking a county seat). It's huge. It's 28 towns including the City of Quincy.

"There is a lot of work to do and it's not something you can knock doors on. It's a highly visible race/campaign. It's a name recognition thing, so you need money to get your name out there."

Here's what the announced Quincy candidates have in their campaign accounts as of the first of January: Patrick McDermott, $51,334; DiBona, $64,951; and Shea, $41,479. Phelan has established a campaign account but no money is listed; the next filing is due Feb. 1.

Croall, if he enters the treasurer's race, has a campaign account balance of $221,123. Hubley, if she joins the race for register of probate, listed $1,150 in her campaign account.

Sheriff Jerry McDermott listed $77,104 in his campaign account as of Jan. 3.

KATHRYN HUBLEY
Democrat

Register Of Probate

The interest in county races combined with a marquee match-up for U.S. Senate could attract a high turnout of voters in the Democratic Primary Tuesday, Sept. 1. The big draw will be the showdown for one of the Bay State's seats in the United States Senate between incumbent Sen. Edward Markey and Cong. Joseph Kennedy.

Other races on the ballot besides the Senate and county races will be for congress, state senator and state representative. All of the Democratic incumbents — Cong. Stephen Lynch, state Sen. John Keenan and state representatives Bruce Ayers (1st Norfolk), Tackey Chan (2nd Norfolk) and Ronald Mariano (3rd Norfolk) are expected to seek re-election this fall.

Primary winners will advance to the Nov. 3rd election which will be headlined by the race for president. President Donald Trump — barring removal from office in his impeachment trial — is seeking a second term. A host of Democrats are vying for their party's nomination and opportunity to unseat Trump this fall.

we span over the tracks and use that wasted space. The tracks are suppressed enough there — why not carry the span over the track and pick up a whole 'nother two sets of aisles on every floor and put that land to use?" Koch said.

"We'll definitely be looking at that. It makes it a little bit more expensive initially, but down the road it has far more value."

Enclosed pedestrian

footbridges could also connect the garage to the medical office building.

"There will probably be overhead connections to the garage to the new medical building," the mayor stated.

"If you park in that garage and you're going to a medical appointment, instead of going outside, crossing the street, up the street and into the building, can you go through an overpass, walk through it and go right into the building.

You're out of the weather and you're not pressing a button to cross the street. I think there is some efficiency that will create."

Last February, Koch announced FoxRock had struck a deal with South Shore Health System — the owner of Weymouth's South Shore Hospital — and Partners HealthCare's Brigham and Women's Hospital to share space inside the new medical office building.

Koch, in the recent interview, said the developer has been in discussions with various operators for the planned hotel.

"They haven't announced anything. I know they have been in discussions with a couple [operators] and there is a lot of interest," he said.

The new 712-car garage that opened on the former

Hancock Lot in December stands four stories tall. Koch was asked if he was concerned about safety at the garage in light of a Christmas Day double murder-suicide at the nine-story Renaissance Park garage in Boston, which followed two other suicides at the same garage earlier in the year. Northeastern University, the garage's owner, plans to make changes there to improve safety.

Koch said he believes Quincy's new garage is safe and does not require any modifications.

"I do," the mayor responded when asked if he felt it was safe enough, noting taller garages were already located nearby before the new one opened.

"If we experience some problems down the road... we'll take a look at it, but I'm not overly concerned about it right now."

Former Mayor William Phelan Candidate For County Sheriff

Former Quincy mayor Bill Phelan announces he has joined the race for Norfolk County sheriff.

In his announcement, Phelan, a Quincy Democrat, discussed his excitement to travel across the county to personally speak with voters. Phelan also highlighted the need to address recidivism, the opioid crisis and addiction treatment, inmate wellbeing, and top-notch training for corrections officers.

"My career in public service has been about helping people, that's why I'm running for sheriff. My campaign is focused on bringing practical reforms to our county's criminal justice system," Phelan said. "When we alleviate the causes of recidivism, we give the people in our care a chance to flourish upon re-entry while also keeping our community safe."

Phelan served three terms as mayor of Quincy — from 2002 to 2008 — and was on the school committee for two years before that. As mayor, Phelan implemented a nationally recognized 10-year plan to end homelessness. Phelan also kept taxes low while significantly raising teacher salaries, instituting city-wide full-day kindergarten, and reducing class sizes, he said in his announcement release.

Phelan will hold his campaign launch party at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, 27 Glendale Rd., Quincy, on Thursday, Jan. 30th at 6 p.m. The event is free and open to the press and public.

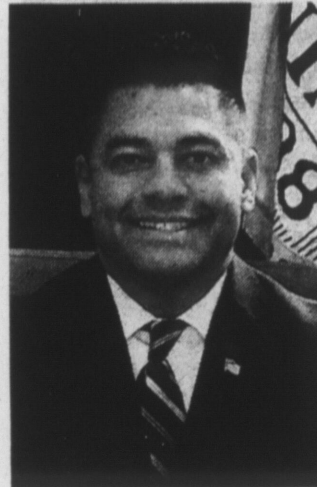

Councillor-At-Large Noel DiBona Candidate For Register Of Probate

Quincy City Councillor at-Large Noel DiBona announces his candidacy for Register of Probate of Norfolk County.

DiBona, a Quincy Democrat who began his political career in 2013 as a Quincy School Committee member, has served as councillor-at-large since 2016, and has been elected to three consecutive terms. If elected as the Register of Probate, DiBona said will continue to serve in his councillor-at-large seat and complete the remainder of his current two-year term.

DiBona has been a small business owner in Quincy for the last 24 years, managing Russ DiBona & Son Landscape & Snow. DiBona graduated from Quincy High School in 1993, and holds a bachelor's degree in sociology and business administration from the University of Massachusetts-Boston.

DiBona has been employed by the Norfolk County Sheriff's office since 2016, where he currently serves as re-entry program coordinator for inmates. DiBona previously served as a senior community services coordinator for the Sheriff's office, assisting senior citizens in scam and fraud prevention at facilities for the elderly throughout Norfolk County.

If elected as the Register of the Probate, DiBona said he would improve all services provided by the court, and pledges to be a consistent strong advocate for attorneys, judges, clients, and citizens.

"I am seeking the seat as the Register of Probate of Norfolk County because I have a strong desire to serve and assist others. Virtually everyone will encounter an experience with probate, whether it is a birth, a death, or divorce. Your experience with the court should be managed with compassion and empathy. I will apply my business management background to the official record keeping and customer service areas of the court to ensure that the public always has the best experience possible, especially during tough times," DiBona said.

"The decision to run for Norfolk County Register of Probate has been a family decision. Following discussions with my wife, Niamh, and other family members we collaboratively decided that I should seek the seat and they are all 100 percent behind the decision," DiBona added.

DiBona will be running as a Democrat. The primary election is set for Tuesday, Sept. 1st and if successful in the primary, he would advance to the final election on Tuesday, Nov. 3rd.

The Committee to Elect Noel DiBona will be holding a campaign kickoff event at Alba Restaurant at 1486 Hancock St. in Quincy Center on Thursday, Feb. 27th from 5-8 p.m., and members of the public are encouraged to attend.

As part of the construction of a hotel on the opposite side of Stratton Way, the developer of the hotel replaced a water main under part of the road. Phung will be responsible for replacing the remainder of the water main under the street and rehabilitating the sewer line adjacent to his property on the Newport Avenue side.

Phung will also work with city officials to let traffic along the unnamed road at the end of Stratton Way, which currently only flows towards Newport Avenue, travel to Fayette Street as well.

In other business Jan. 8, the Planning Board approved Robert Mattie's request to build nine townhouse units at 172 South St. in Quincy Point. The site contains 23,700 square feet of land in a Residence B zoning district. A three-family home is presently located on site.

Each townhouse will have its own two-car garage on the ground floor with living space above.

Mattie's initial proposal for the site, which went before the board in the fall, included 12 townhouse units.

Public hearings on four other proposals that were on the agenda for the Jan. 8 meeting were continued to future meetings as the applicants work on revisions to those plans.

Those projects include: Michael Boyce's proposal to build a 24-unit residential building at 11-17 Newbury St. in North Quincy. The project would include 43 parking spaces. The hearing on that matter was continued until March 11.

Charles McCarthy's request to construct a 43-unit condominium building at 85-105 Myrtle St. in North Quincy, with parking for 90 vehicles on site. The matter was continued to the Feb. 5 meeting.

Mattie's request to renovate the commercial building at 90 School St. on the outskirts of Quincy Center to create a mixed-use building with 18 parking spaces on the lower level, commercial space at street level and nine one-bedroom apartments on the second floor. The hearing on that plan was continued to March 11.

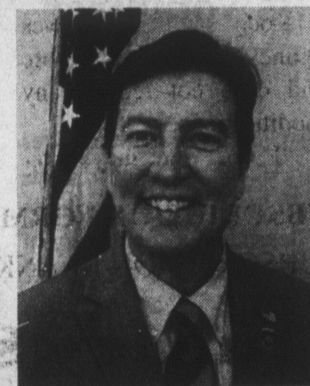

Eric Zhang's request to build a mixed-use building, with 75 residential units four storefronts and 89 total parking spaces, at 21-29 Beale St. in Wollaston Center. The public hearing on that matter was continued to the March 11 meeting.

Sheriff Jerry McDermott Creates Task Force On Juvenile Substance Abuse, Mental Health

Norfolk County Sheriff Jerry P. McDermott announces the recently formed Sheriff's Task Force on Juvenile Substance Abuse & Mental Health.

The task force is made up of over 30 educators, elected officials, parents, law enforcement, health officers, and other professionals from across Norfolk County, tasked with advising the sheriff on the main issues and challenges facing the youth of our region, and offer recommendations for action.

Sheriff Jerry McDermott recently convened his second meeting with the group, where the main focus was on vaping among youth, and how towns and schools are addressing this growing concern. They also heard from representatives from Attorney General Maura Healey's Office who updated them on youth programs, as well as provided an overview of the pending lawsuit against Purdue Pharma, over its proliferation of opioids.

Following the meeting

Sheriff Jerry McDermott extended his appreciation and thanks to the members of the task force who volunteered to help be a part of the solution when it comes to protecting our young people.

"I want to thank this diverse and dedicated group of leaders and advocates, who see these serious problems among our youth, first hand, and they want to be a part of the solution," Sheriff Jerry McDermott said. "We at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office want the families in all 28 communities of the county, and all school systems, to know that we stand with you in addressing these problems now, and from a regional approach."

Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of January 19th, 2020

- Removal of the old sidewalk and construction of the new sidewalk along the West of Chestnut building on Cottage Ave has been proposed by the developer. Once a safe pedestrian route has been established the work will begin.
- There will be sidewalk work on the Revere Road sidewalk behind the new Nova Residences building. Follow the pedestrian detour routes when walking in that area.
- NGRID Gas continues to work out in Hancock Street. There is a new isolation gas valve and new plastic piping that will need to be installed before the new services can be lived up.
- The subgrade drainage, irrigation and electrical work on the civic plaza space between the atrium, Nova Residences and the new garage are complete. The contractor will continue to work on the hardscape walking surfaces.

(The photo on the above left was taken from the new garage showing the new civic plaza area with the entrance to the new atrium at the top center of the photo and Nova Residences to the left. The photo on the above right shows NGRID Gas excavating to their existing pipe in the area where a new gas isolation valve will be installed.)

2 Quincy Students Volunteer On Assumption SEND Trips

Two Assumption College students from Quincy recently participated in a week-long service immersion trip through the college's SEND program.

The program offers students an opportunity to work with a variety of organizations during school breaks.

Meghan Forde, a member of the Class of 2020, was part of a group that traveled to Tuscaloosa, Alabama, to work with tornado relief organizations such as Habitat for Humanity to understand the ongoing effort to rebuild Tuscaloosa. The students also immersed themselves in Alabama culture, visiting places like Montgomery to learn about the history of the Civil Rights Movement.

Maeve McDonald, a member of the Class of 2021, traveled to Trenton, NJ, where students participated in a retreat facilitated by the organization FaithJustice. Students served at a social justice education center as well as spent time helping strengthen the local community by volunteering at Carolyn Stokes Preschool, Sprout University, TASK, and Visitation Home.

THE MBTA is considering moving its bus depot at 954 Hancock St., Quincy (shown here) to the former Lowe's site on Burgin Parkway. If the relocation goes through, Mayor Thomas Koch said the city is interested in acquiring the site adjacent to Veterans' Memorial Stadium. One potential use is for an athletic field house, the mayor said. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

Koch Eyes Field House At MBTA Bus Site

The site at 954 Hancock St. contains 3.76 acres of land, according to the city's online property records. It is located adjacent to Veterans' Memorial Stadium, though the two sites are at different elevations.

Koch, in a recent interview, responded "absolutely" when asked if he was interested in acquiring the parcel on Hancock Street and said he envisions a field house being built on site. He suggested the city could tap into hotel tax receipts and funding from the Community Preservation Act to pay for such a project; the city could also partner with the Boston Cannons, the Major League Lacrosse team that calls Veterans' Memorial Stadium home.

"Everything costs money, we would have to look at the whole financial picture with it, but we've got some dedicated revenue sources with the hotel tax and the CPA that could help us. I would think that a possibility of a field house that's owned by the city that could serve our sport community — our high schools, our middle schools and some of the sporting communities," Koch answered when asked if he had plans for the land on Hancock Street.

"There are long winters around here. It would be pretty cool to have that available to our local sports programs and kids; perhaps the Cannons participate in it financially because it may make sense for them. Who knows? There are some options there."

The field house, he explained, would have "a versatile type setup that different sports could go in and use." Such uses could include soccer games or baseball practice, for example. In addition, the site could have room for parking for both the field house and the stadium next door.

Koch has already told the MBTA he is interested in the land.

"The T owns that, and I have informed them I have an interest in that site before they go too far," he said. "If they do move, I want them to know right up front I have an interest in that site for city of Quincy use."

Typically, Koch said, state officials give municipalities the first opportunity to acquire land when it becomes available.

"It's kind of an unwritten rule," the mayor said. "I wanted them to know up front."

Koch said it is important for members of the public to attend the Jan. 29 meeting to hear more details about the proposal to move the bus depot to the former Lowe's, and it is also important for the MBTA to listen to residents that night.

"Obviously, I want the public to have a meeting and some have input and listen to the T's proposal," he said. "At the end of the day, the MBTA has eminent domain authority, so we don't have to say yes or no — they can do what they want to do."

Koch said he understands why the MBTA would want to move its bus facility to the site on Burgin Parkway.

"We are a major district within the MBTA authority. Obviously, we have four Red Line stations. We have a commuter rail station. We have a lot of bus routes in Quincy and we are the focal point for some of the bus routes that go to Hull and Randolph and Ashmont and Dorchester. A lot of people in Quincy get served by these buses," Koch said.

"It makes sense for us that the T has the appropriate facilities to maintain what they need to maintain and obviously the old bus barn on Hancock Street is not adequate to do what they need to do. The buses that are coming down the road that are far more energy efficient and environmentally friendly are bigger. They won't fit in those barns anymore on Hancock Street — I think that's a lousy place for it anyway.

"I think a place like off of Burgin Parkway — a four-lane roadway right across from a T station — I don't think it's a bad choice. Obviously, I'm not excited about giving up that kind of tax revenue, because the state doesn't pay taxes on these facilities, but I can see from their perspective why it makes sense."

The parcel at 599 Burgin Parkway includes 12.81 acres of land in a planned-unit-development zoning district, which makes the City Council the special permit granting authority for the land, though the MBTA, as a state agency, would not need local approval for its plan.

Amazon, the online retailer, has reportedly expressed interest in using the site for a potential distribution center. Koch said he will be meeting with a representative from Amazon in the coming weeks, though it is unclear if the company is looking at the Burgin Parkway site or another property in the city.

"I've got an attorney coming in on my schedule representing Amazon to come to see me. I don't know if it is for that site or something else, but I've heard they are interested in that site," the mayor said.

"That doesn't move me," Koch added, referring to the possibility of the site being used as a distribution center.

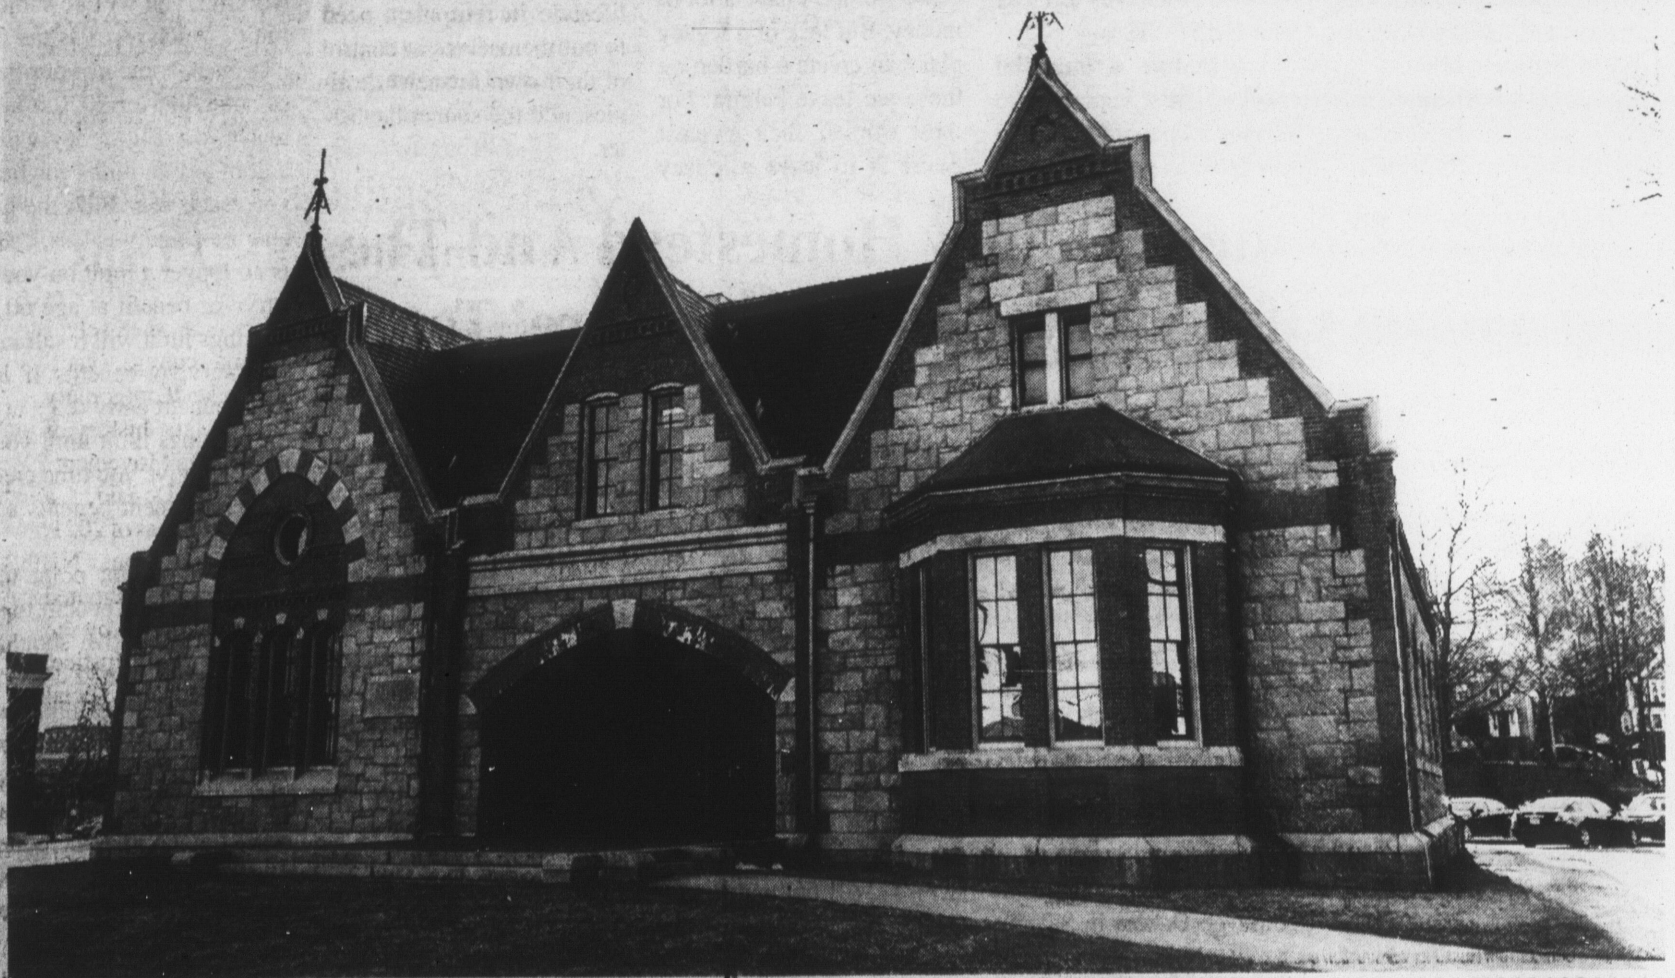

Koch: Strong Case To Return Adams Book Collection

By SCOTT JACKSON

There is a strong moral and legal case to have John Adams' personal book collection returned to his hometown of Quincy, Mayor Thomas Koch said recently in an interview.

The mayor, in his inaugural address earlier this month, said he planned to ask Boston officials to return the collection to Quincy, where it would become the centerpiece of new presidential library honoring John Adams. The second president left the collection to the then town of Quincy in his will, though it was transferred in 1894 to the Boston Public Library, which holds the books to this day.

Koch plans to turn the Adams Academy, located on Adams Street in Quincy Center, into a new presidential library. The building,

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: When Should I Claim My Widow's Benefit?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizen

Dear Rusty: My husband passed away at the age of 52, and I was 53. I am currently 59. I've read about and been encouraged to file for widow's benefits from Social Security when I turn 60. My question is: does doing that impact when I should file for my regular Social Security benefits? In reading on many websites regarding my question, this never is addressed on what is best. Signed: Widowed Survivor

Dear Survivor: You have my sympathy for the loss of your husband at such a young age. I'll try to clarify your options for you.

Provided you have not remarried you can claim your survivor benefit at age 60, but if you do it will be reduced by 28.5% from what it would be at your full retirement age (FRA) of 67. As long as you are explicit when claiming your survivor benefit that you are not also applying for your own Social Security benefit, there will be no negative impact to your eventual Social Security retirement benefit when you claim that. But, determining which benefit to take, and when, requires some thought.

Your goal should be to get the highest benefit possible for the rest of your life. To help you decide how and when to file, you should first see what your survivor benefit will be at your full retirement age (100% of what your husband was entitled to at his death). If that amount is more than you are entitled to on your own at age 70 then you should consider waiting until age 67 (your FRA) to claim your widow's benefit, so you can get that higher survivor benefit for the rest of your life. Conversely, if your own age 70 benefit will be more than your widow's benefit at your FRA, then claiming your widow's benefit first and allowing your own benefit to grow until age 70 when it reaches maximum would be the more prudent choice. You can get estimates of both your survivor benefit and your age 70 retirement benefit by contacting Social Security. But if claiming the survivor benefit at age 60 is what you decide, or if you were to instead claim your Social Security retirement benefits early (e.g., age 62) there's more for you to consider.

If you are collecting any Social Security benefits before you reach your full retirement age (FRA) and you are still working, you will be subject to Social Security's "earnings limit" which restricts the amount you can earn before they take back some of your benefits (the earnings limit changes annually; for 2020 it is $18,240). Up until the year you reach your FRA, they will take back benefits equal to one half of any earnings you have over the limit. During the year you reach your FRA the limit increases by about 2.5 times and the penalty is less, and once you reach your FRA there is no longer a limit on your earnings. So, if you claim your survivor benefit at age 60 and are working, exceeding the earnings limit will result in you permanently losing some of your survivor benefits. If, instead, you claim your SS retirement benefit early (e.g., at age 62) you'll still be subject to the earnings limit until you reach age 67, but at your FRA they will give you time credit for any months you didn't get your retirement benefits and increase your benefit amount accordingly.

The important point to remember is that you have a choice of which benefit to take, and evaluating your options as described above should lead you to the right answer - whether you should claim your reduced survivor benefit at age 60, or to delay until it reaches maximum at age 67.

Women Anxious About Money Should Make These 4 Resolutions

Women more than men doubt their abilities to make financial decisions, and as a result women often let their husbands, partners, or significant others handle planning for retirement or investing in the stock market, studies show.

But 2020 is as good a time as any to change that, says Jeanette Bajalia, a retirement-income planner, founder of Woman's Worth (www.womans-worth.com), and the author of such financial books as "Wise Up, Women and Retirement Done Right."

"Most women are going to be responsible for managing their money at some time in their lives," Bajalia says. "They will be widowed or divorced, and at that point are going to have a steep learning curve if they always left the investing responsibilities to others."

To help give themselves a more secure financial future, Bajalia suggests women resolve in the coming year to:

- Become financially literate. "I've seen too many women suffer because of ill-informed decisions about their money," Bajalia says. "Many women, especially baby boomers, were never taught as young girls to assume financial management responsibilities." To become a good steward of your money, she says, it's important to understand various savings strategies and options, and the risks and rewards associated with those strategies. So, learn about investing and learn how to read a financial statement. "Studies have shown that people who become educated about their financial strategies and play an active role in planning and monitoring their assets end up twice as wealthy as those who don't," she says.

- Schedule a financial checkup. It's important to develop a financial plan that will provide you income in retirement, but don't just shove the plan into a drawer, Bajalia says. Situations change, and you may need to accelerate savings, reduce risks, or tweak your plan in some other fashion. Meeting with your financial professional for an annual "financial physical" will provide an in-depth assessment of where you are against where you want to be, she says.

- Create or update a legacy plan. Nearly 60 percent of Americans are missing critical legacy and estate planning documents, such as a will, a trust, a living will, or power-of-attorney documents, Bajalia says. "Women need to remember that 'estate' is not synonymous with wealth," she says. "Far too often, we don't feel like we need an estate plan because we don't have a lot of money. But lack of a legacy plan can create a burden on those we leave behind. For most women, their greatest desire is to leave a legacy and to not be a burden on their children or other family members."

- Get healthy and stay healthy. What does this have to do with your finances? A lot, Bajalia says. The longer you live, the more likely you'll face debilitating illnesses, and those illnesses come with big medical expenses that can drain your savings. "We want to ensure that in our 50s and 60s we start really taking care of both our physical and emotional health, so it doesn't have such a devastating impact on our wealth," she says.

"Sadly, most Americans spend more time planning a two-week vacation than they do planning their financial futures," Bajalia says. "Women who want a quality lifestyle in retirement need to put themselves in control of their own financial destinies, and the sooner the better."

'Wildly Exciting: Quincy Homestead And The Invention Of Preservation Architecture' Topic

Many know that the (Dorothy) Quincy Homestead was designated a National Historic Landmark in 2005 due to its unique architecture, but few are familiar with the story of its early 1904 restoration by historic architect Joseph Everett Chandler (1863-1945).

Chandler became nationally known for his restorations of historic houses, often in collaboration with progressive women social reformers of his time, including the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts

(NSCDA-MA).

Chandler's collaboration with the NSCDA-MA at Quincy led to one of the first American restorations that carefully preserved both the history and architectural fabric of an historic house. At the Quincy Homestead, Chandler formulated some of the archaeological techniques he used in his subsequent restorations, which included the Paul Revere House and Old State House in Boston and the House of the Seven Gables in Salem. Chandler restored a hundred old houses, including three dozen which now function as museums. He also wrote the definitive text The Colonial House (1916).

Hear about what Chandler found to be "wildly exciting" during his career and more about Chandler's restoration efforts and his influence on the Homestead's current architecture at a lecture next month.

The lecture entitled "Wildly Exciting: Quincy Homestead and the Invention of Preservation Architecture" will be held Saturday, Feb. 1, 10:30 a.m. at the Quincy Historical Society. The lecture will be delivered by Timothy T. Orwig, PhD, who teaches art and architectural history at Boston College. In his publications, Professor Orwig has investigated the successes and failures of the historic preservation movement. He is the leading authority on Joseph Everett Chandler, the subject of his dissertation and upcoming book.

This lecture is sponsored by the NSCDA-MA Quincy Homestead Committee in cooperation with the Quincy Historical Society for the Quincy's History & Heritage Roadshow. The event is free of charge and open to the public.

MLK, Jr. Remembered At Annual Breakfast

By SCOTT JACKSON

There is much work that remains before the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s dream of ending inequality and injustice can be achieved, said Joseph Finn, the keynote speaker at Monday's annual breakfast honoring the slain civil rights leader.

A standing-room-only crowd of some 100 people — including students, community members, elected officials, and school employees — attended the hour-long breakfast Monday morning inside the cafeteria at Quincy High School.

Finn, the president and executive director of the Massachusetts Housing & Shelter Alliance and a former city councillor, asked those present Monday to consider how King would want to be remembered today.

"As we gather this morning, we have to ask this question. If we could ask it of him, which unfortunately we cannot, which type of memory would Dr. King prefer we use? Would he prefer a kind of nostalgic memory recalling his achievements, acknowledging his character and celebrating as though he was totally victorious in establishing civil rights in our nation?" Finn said.

"Or, might he not prefer the dangerous memory of Dr. King who would remind us that we too...are in difficult times and we are called to address the racial, economic and social injustice that we encounter in it?"

Finn noted a 2018 report to the United Nations found that African Americans are more likely to be arrested, more likely to be convicted after arrest, and more likely to experience lengthy prison sentences after conviction than white Americans.

"As of 2001, for African-American boys born in that time, one in three had a likelihood of going to prison, compared to one in 17 of white boys," he said.

White households, Finn added, are on average wealthier than African-American ones.

"We live in a society where...the median white household wealth is $134,000 and the median African-American household is around $11,000," he said. "This...difference is due in great part to historic questions around building equity in housing."

African Americans accounted for 40 percent of all people experiencing homelessness last year, despite comprising 13 percent of the country's overall population, Finn said, citing data from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"African Americans have remained considerably overrepresented among the homeless population," Finn said. "Reasons for this, to me, seem to be obvious. The principles of the Fair Housing Act were actually passed in 1968 as a reaction to the assassination of Dr. King, and yet, the promise of those principles have yet to now home to the Quincy Historical Society, first opened in 1872 as a school for boys. Adams established a trust to pay for the school's construction and also chose its location; the site is the birthplace of John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence and a childhood friend of Adams.

Koch, in a recent interview, said Quincy has a strong case for getting Adams' books back from Boston.

"I think that having his book collection in the building that he desired to have for a school for he paid for is a hell of a start for a presidential library in his name," Koch said.

"I do think that we have a very strong moral and legal case to get this collection back to Quincy. He explicitly left it to the people of Quincy or its corporate successor, which means the city, and they were on loan to the BPL."

The other issue is ev-

everything has been digitized, so, if people want to access the collection, they can still get it through that medium, so it's not as important for them. I think the sentimental value of having them physically at a presidential library in his name is huge."

Koch said he had yet to reach out to Boston officials regarding his plans but is preparing a package of information concerning the request. He plans to reach out to the Adams family as well.

"I am preparing a package now that we will be sending to the board of trustees of the Boston Public Library to begin the conversation," Koch said. "I'm going to be sending notices to the Adams family letting them know what we're doing and hopefully they will be supportive. I want to do some of that homework before we do the official request to the BPL."

The Boston Public Library holds some 3,000 of Adams' books. The books include handwritten notes Adams made.

"He's written in the margins. He's underlined stuff," Koch said. "That's pretty cool stuff."

The mayor said he would likely establish a board of trustees to oversee the new library. Conservators would also be required to ensure the books were kept safe.

"Obviously, there would be a whole setup if we're going to create this. We'd have to have the right people, conservators, on board, and people who know how you maintain these. You can't let them in anybody's hands — perhaps it's for scholars only on something. Others can view it digitally," Koch said.

"We've got a lot of work to do on that. We're going to be sitting with a lot of different people to make sure we get it right. If we're going to go down this road, it's got to be done right."

"I see down the road if we put together some kind of a board of trustees or something, I would want someone from the [National] Park Service. I would want someone from the Adams family. I would want somebody from the Crane Library and somebody from the historical society."

Koch said it is too early to say whether items that once belonged to other Adams family members, including John Quincy Adams, would be placed in the library as well. He suggested those items could be loaned to the new library from their current owners.

"John Quincy, a lot of his stuff is in the brick library that's on the grounds of the Old House. The state has a lot of stuff. Mass historic has a lot of stuff. The commonwealth's archives have a lot of stuff," Koch said.

"Whether we could get stuff on loan as this evolves, I think is a question."

The mayor also suggested a film welcoming guests to the new library could be produced, though it remains to be determined whether that film would be shown at the library itself or at the visitors center to the Adams National Historical Park; the visitors center is currently located at Presidents Place, but it could move one day to new municipal building on the opposite side of Hancock Street that Koch also proposed in his inaugural address.

"I've been to Mount Vernon and I've been to other places and where ever you go now there is a welcoming center and there is a place where you see a three- or four- or five-minute film introducing you to the person's life and story? Does that go in there or does that belong in the visitors center?" Koch said.

"We've got all these things to kick around. I've got some ideas, but we've got a lot of work to do. This just starts the conversation."

Though the Adams Academy is nearly 150 years old, the mayor said it remains in great shape.

"The good thing about the historic Adams Academy is the city and the society have maintained that building very well," he said. "The bricks have been done. The windows have been done. It's not like it's a building in bad shape."

As for the future of the Quincy Historical Society, Koch said he would work with the group to find it a new home if the library does open.

"I think the historical society is awesome and I wouldn't do anything that would put them out of business, of course. We would work with them for a new location, whether it's part of our new buildings or something," Koch said. Absolutely, they will be part of our future planning. They are not going to be on the street."

Register O'Donnell Promotes Foreclosure Assistance Programs

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell is reminding homeowners who are in the midst of struggling to pay their mortgage or facing foreclosure that there are consumer programs available to help them out.

"While the eastern Massachusetts economy continues to be on a solid footing, some of our neighbors are facing economic hardship. Foreclosures can result from any number of factors including an illness, a job loss or being on a fixed income," O'Donnell said.

To help consumers, the Registry of Deeds has partnered with reputable non-profit agencies by promoting their services when it comes to mortgage modification and foreclosure programs. Consumers can either contact the Quincy Community Action Programs at (617) 479-8181 x-376 or NeighborWorks

WILLIAM O'DONNELL

Housing Solutions at (508) 587-0950 x-46. Another option would be the Massachusetts Attorney General's Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at 617-727-8400.

"These agencies provide a range of assistance from helping with the mortgage modification process to providing legal services, to staving off a foreclosure, and to offering several forms of credit counseling," O'Donnell said. "For more information on these and other support options, check out the Registry's website, www.norfolkdeeds.org under the Support tab."

O'Donnell also provided a cautionary note to consumers.

"Unfortunately, some unscrupulous for-profit foreclosure relief and mortgage modification companies are looking to prey on vulnerable homeowners. Some of these companies look to charge consumers outrageous prices for services by making unrealistic promises to them. If what they are telling you seems too good to be true, it probably is. Please check out any of these companies before entering into a contract with them."

Concluding his remarks, O'Donnell noted, "While we saw a reduced number of foreclosure recordings in 2019, we recognize that one foreclosure in the county is one too many. The Registry is always glad to help those facing a mortgage delinquency or foreclosure crisis by directing them to the appropriate agency. These organizations are there to serve your needs in the most professional and honorable ways."

Stylish, Trendy Wet Rooms

I'm in love with the stylish and trendy wet room. Can I convert a small upstairs bathroom on a timber floor to this design? Larry

For those of you not familiar with the term, a wet room is a waterproof bathroom tiled floor to ceiling with good ventilation and a graded floor for proper draining.

From minimalist to whimsical or extravagant, wet rooms are typically open floor plans with no shower pans (i.e., base), curtains, or screens (i.e., glass or plexiglass walls). Some contain a bathtub while others just a shower. Yet larger rooms may have partial screens or even two floor to ceiling screens flanking the bathtub to protect the toilet and sink areas from excess water.

These fashionable, often spa-like rooms come in many sizes, shapes, and forms and work well for those with limited mobility like the elderly and physically challenged. Not only do they look luxurious, they are so simple to clean and maintain, too.

A wet room is a great way to make the most of a small bathroom making it appear larger than it really is - especially if you choose a monochromatic color scheme.

Depending on the size of the room and your remodeling budget, you can vary the shape of the wet area (try placing it in a corner or inside a custom circular screen), add a bench, choose bold or contrasting tiles, include a window or heated flooring (which will help with drying out the space after use), and/or install multiple shower heads, colored lights, and sound systems. You can even add a few floor plants to your room.

Originally, wet rooms were only installed on first floors with a concrete floor but now can be worked into upstairs baths with wooden floors as long as there is proper gradation so the water slopes to the drain.

With careful planning and installation, the sky is the limit for a stylish wet room with some good "clean" design in the bath.

Reflecting on King's 1963 "Letter From Birmingham Jail," Finn concluded his remarks by saying those in attendance can use their time constructively by honoring King's memory and working towards a better world or destructively by staying complacent.

"If we are going to honor his true memory, his dangerous memory, then each of us have to ask ourselves that question, what are we going to do with our time as it relates to the society, to the community, to the state that we live?" Finn said.

"Will we use it constructively or will we, even by our complacency, use it destructively?"

Finn, who served as a city councillor from 2002 to the end of 2017, opened his comments by welcoming the diversity of today's city council and said the election of an Asian-American woman as council president would have been hard to believe 18 years ago. Nina Liang, Finn's longtime neighbor, became the first Asian-American council president in Quincy's history earlier this month.

"It's a wonderful sign of the resiliency and hope of this city to see the diversity that we have today on our city council. When I first started my career in 2002, if somebody at that time told me that there would be an Asian-American woman who was the president of the city council, I would have said I find that kind of hard to believe," Finn said.

"But, if someone had told me that that president of that city council would be the freshman in high school who lived across the street from me, that would have been even harder to believe. You can imagine the excitement I felt in 2015 when she invited me out to coffee to tell me that she was running against me. Mayor, this is at that point where I have to make a little bit of confession - I used all of my energy to try to convince her to run for mayor."

Mayor Thomas Koch said Americans have more in common than they do differences.

"We've got to hold to our faith, and we've got to remember that, in my opinion, we have far more in common with each other in this country than what divides us. We truly do. We've got to find that common ground," Koch said. "Let us pray for peace in our hearts, peace in our homes and peace in the world."

The mayor also remembered Russell Erikson, who died Jan. 17 at the age of 97, during Monday's breakfast. A World War II Army Air Forces veteran, Mr. Erikson flew 33 missions over Germany and Europe during the war and received two Distinguished Flying Crosses for his service.

"We lost a great American here in Quincy, Mr. Russ Erikson, who was 97 years old. He had flown 33 bombing missions over Europe in the fight against evil at that time," Koch said. "So, keep

"We gather this morning as a community of many ages, of many backgrounds, of many life experiences, each of us called here by the life and legacy of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. May his words and his actions guide us and sustain us in our time together today and in our time together in other settings," Froom said.

"Remembering his words that injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere, let us look honestly in our neighborhoods and the world of nature, let us look honestly at our city and our country, let us look honestly at into our hearts and our homes, to see where injustice is present, to see where the opportunity for justice is present."

Monday's breakfast also included three performances by students at the YMCA's Germantown Neighborhood Center. Allison Boyd performed the Beyoncé song "I was here"; Jonathan Tan performed an original song, "At the End of the Day"; and a group of students, the Dancing Divas, danced to the song "This Is Me" from the film "The Greatest Showman."

Central Girls, Atlantic Boys MS Volleyball Champions

The middle school volleyball playoffs were held recently at Quincy High School, with the Atlantic boys and Central girls winning titles.

In the boys' tournament, the wildcard matchups kicked off the morning with Point defeating South-West, 2-1.

South-West took the first set, 21-12, thanks to Ruben Santana's 12 serves in a row. Jordan Mahoney had some great digs in the back row and was very aggressive at the net. The Point boys were not fazed and came back and won 21-16, with outstanding defense by Dahrien Bernabel and strong serves by Sam Najjar. Despite all-around great play by Henry Tran and David Li, South-West couldn't top the great defense by Point and lost 15-8, in the final game.

In the boys' semifinal, Point put up an amazing battle against undefeated Atlantic behind great defensive plays by Lucas Rodriguez, exceptional serves by Calvin Bayot, and riveting offensive plays from Gabriel Rodriguez. It wasn't enough though, as the Atlantic boys, thanks to the steady, consistent serving and offense of Lukas Fehan, and the hitting of Justin Liu, took the first set. In the second set, Point had a strong run, but was eventually stopped by the blocking and spiking of Anthony Chiu and the setting/tipping of Charlie Ambroult.

The other boys' semifinal matchup pitted Broad Meadows against Central. The Meadows boys were able to hold off a talented Central team and win the match, 21-15, 21-16, behind strong serves from Teddy Lynch, great back row defense by Dennis Li, and solid setting by William Lam.

"Due to an unexpected illness, we had to switch William from outside hitter to setter and he did an outstanding job," said coach Jess Hayes. Central's Cameron Johnston led the team both offensively and defensively with the help of teammate Arli Dylja, who shined at the net.

"Max Guadiano kept us in all our games as a strong, consistent, server all season," said Central coach Nancy Reppucci.

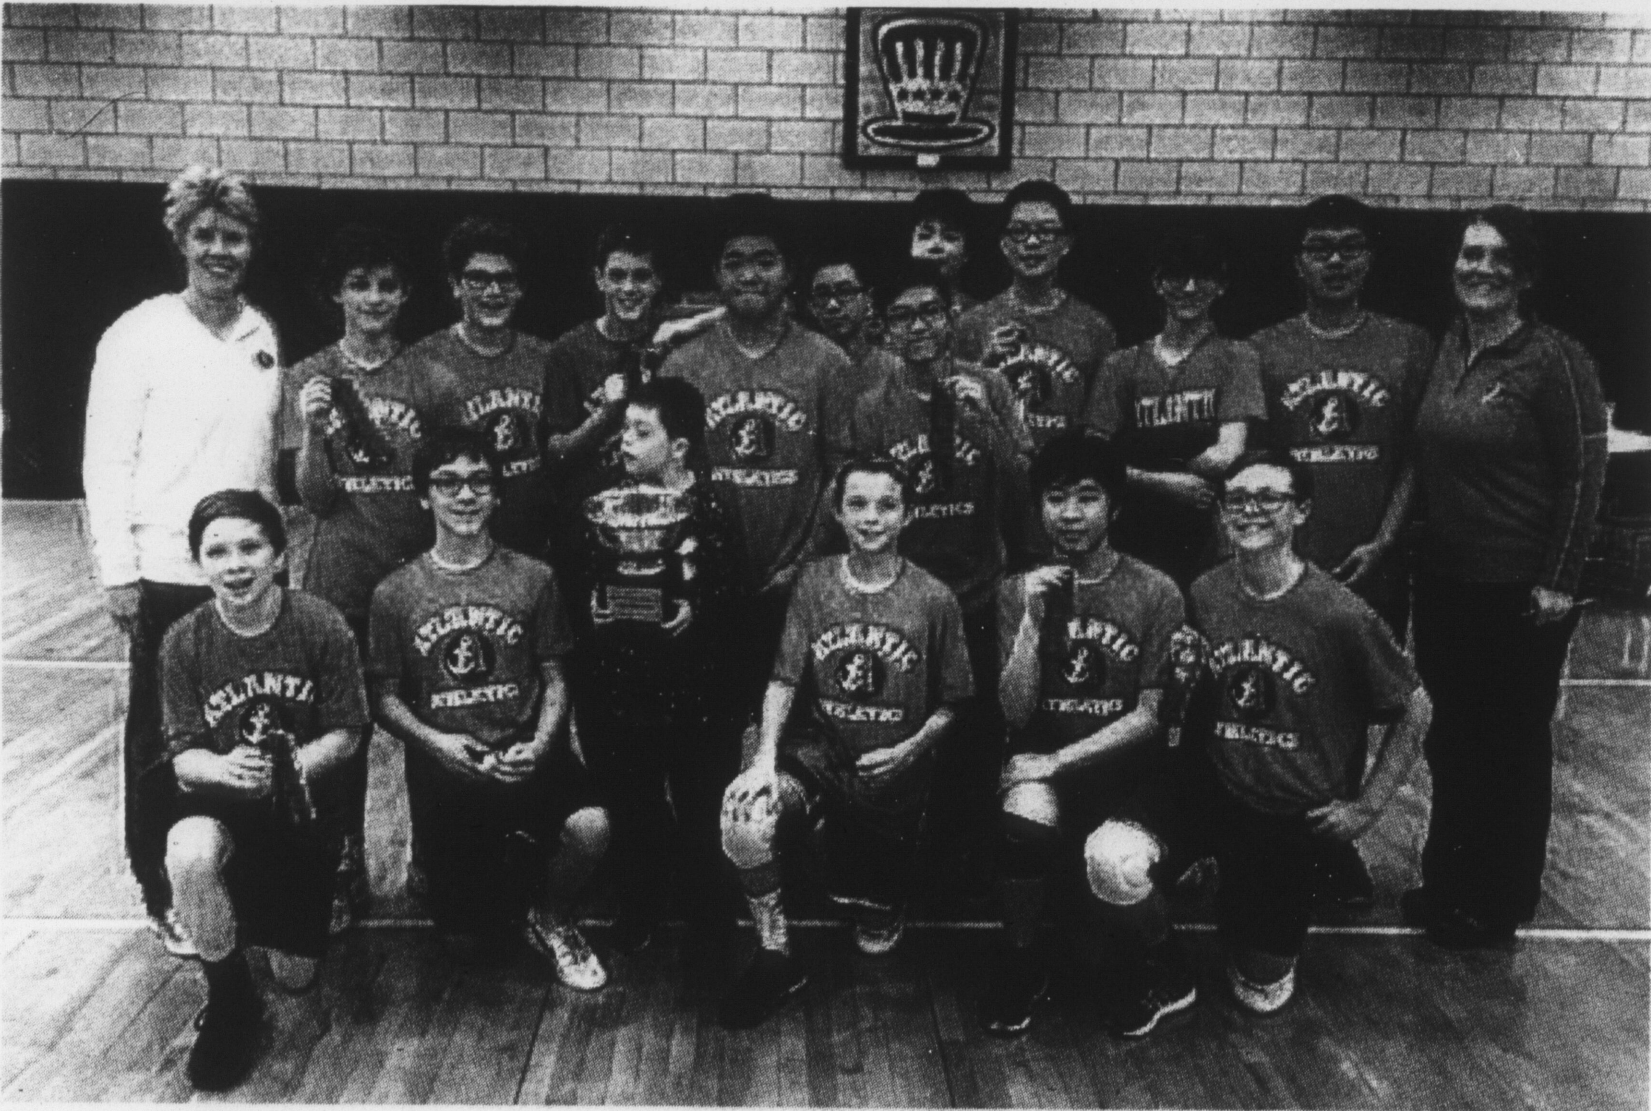

Tim Heise dug every ball that came to him and kept Central's back row strong as the libero.

Atlantic faced Broad Meadows in the finals and won a close first set, 22-20, under the strong setting and leadership of Jack Huffnagle. Meadows's Daithi Quinn and Ganilo Quintos had outstanding offensive and defensive plays at the net to keep it close and exciting.

In the second set, Meadows came out strong and took a 17-13 lead behind Adam Bonica's consistent, line drive serves and solid all around play by John Toland. Atlantic never lost its focus, though, and came back strong thanks to setter Thomas Ford and middle Alan Guan. "Thomas and Alan had great chemistry and outstanding play for us all season, which is rare to see on a middle school volleyball team," said coach

Holly Rendle.

In the end, the match came down to two players whose contributions have been instrumental all year -- the passing and defense of libero Mike "Soupy" Campbell and the rocket serves and spikes of Raymond Lin. Atlantic won the second set 21-18 and finished the season as city champions, with an undefeated record of 8-0.

Girls Tournament

In the girls' tournament, the wild card matchup between Point and South-West featured tremendous improvement by both teams as the match went three exciting sets. South-West came out aggressively with Tameka Liang, Dyanmond Velasquez, and Stephany Alcantara having great serves and strong defense to win the first set. Point never got discouraged and came back to win the second set with great all around play by Amina Amimer, Aiva Bailey, and Lizzy Jones. In the third and decisive set,

South-West's Kelly Chan's improved serving gave her team a boost, but it just wasn't enough as Point's Alyssa Keith and Mayara Clem had great defense to win and advance to the semifinals.

"I'm really proud of my girls staying calm in a really close match and that was the key to us winning," said coach Dorinda Vale.

Despite the loss, South-West coach Colleen Nichol said, "my girls played their best game of the season and

In the first semifinal, Central had to earn its way into the Championship game by defeating Broad Meadows in a tough, two-set match. Meadows's Grace O'Connor and Paige Mann were great all-around.

"Grace and Paige showed the same solid leadership they have showed all season, and kept us in the match," said Meadows coach Tricia Wong.

Central's Caroline O'Donnell rose to the occasion, played great at the net and was powerful at the service line to lead her team to a 21-19 first set win. Despite solid offense by Izzy Krammer, Meadows couldn't stop Central's Molly Toland's and Sadie Johnston's great defense and solid all-around play, and lost the second set 21-16. Grace Pickering had the game winning point to send Central into the Finals.

In the other semifinal, Atlantic faced a strong Point team and won the first set under the leadership and solid all-around play of Kathy Mo, Leilan Bias, and Mindy Lin. Point rallied to take the second set behind outstanding offensive plays by Kathy Duong and Shea McSweeney and some remarkable defense by Tayah Quinn, before Atlantic went on to win the match thanks to the consistent setting of Tiffany Chin, and the strong offense of Isabella McKenzie and Simone Trainer. In the championship match against Central, Atlantic girls grew hesitant and were unable to maintain the aggressive style they had played all season. The match had exciting volleys, with myriad pass-set-hit sequences on both sides that were reminiscent of a high school-level match. Despite a valiant effort and strategic net play of Jenna Zarges and

Ursuline Academy Senior Siobhan O'Sullivan Signs Letter Of Intent

Quincy Resident To Throw Shotput At Div. 1 Bucknell University

Ursuline Academy senior Siobhan O'Sullivan, a resident of Quincy, recently signed a letter of intent to throw the shotput for D1 Bucknell University in Lewisburg, PA, next year.

O'Sullivan is a member of the varsity basketball team as well as track and field. Siobhan holds the school record in both indoor and outdoor shotput, and the record for indoor and outdoor shotput relay along with Caroline Afonso '20 and MacKenzie Enos '18. Siobhan is the daughter of James and Mary O'Sullivan.

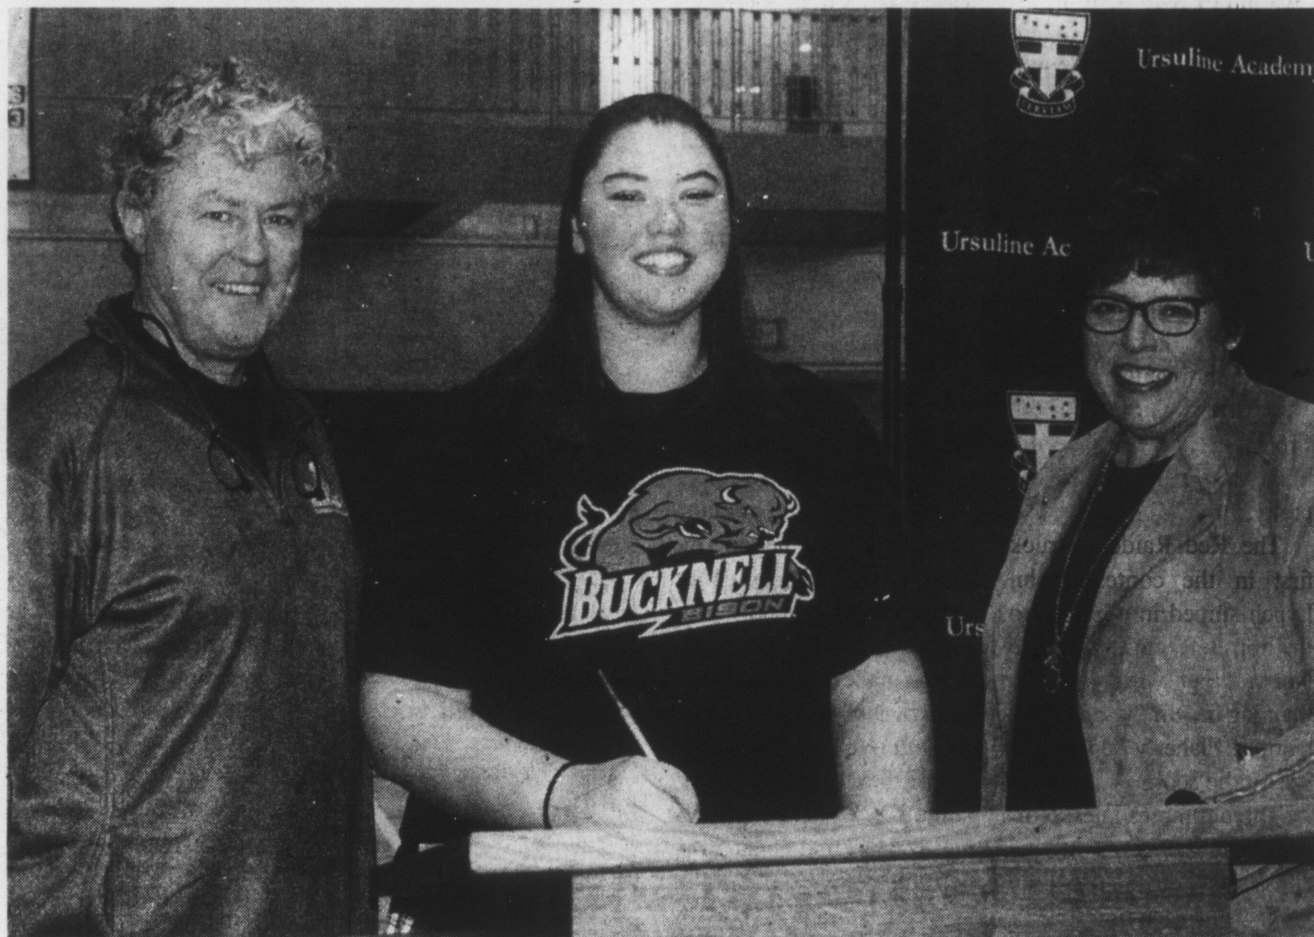

In addition to O'Sullivan, two other Ursuline seniors recently signed letters of intent to compete in college athletics next year.

Caroline Afonso, a resident of West Roxbury, will compete in shotput at Northeastern University, and Catherine Wukitch of Needham will swim at Kenyon College, a D3 school in Gambier, Ohio.

Ursuline Academy is an independent Catholic school in Dedham for young women in grades 7-12 that fosters respect, compassion, intellectual curiosity, and a commitment to service. Ursuline strives to integrate the physical and social health of its students through competitive athletic programs designed to develop well-rounded individuals.

The Academy offers 14 sports over three seasons and over 70% of its students play in at least one sport. Interested applicants can visit www.ursulineacademy.net.

NQ Girls Hoop Bows To Scituate, Pembroke

North Quincy's girls varsity basketball continues to struggle in Patriot League play dropping games last week to Scituate and defending Fisher Division Champion Pembroke.

Hosting the Sailors Jan. 14th, North jumped out to an 11-8 lead after the first quarter. Fallon Hobin hit for 4 while Alexa Radzik hit a long three to help give the Red Raiders the lead. Radzik also did a great job defending Scituate's freshman phenom Grace McNamara holding her scoreless in the first eight minutes.

The visitors found their shooting touch in the second quarter outscoring the Red and Black 20-10. McNamara had 8 with Liz Slein adding 6. Alex Abrahamovich and Hobin both hit threes in the quarter to keep the hosts within 7 at halftime.

Lila McGuigan scored all of her 10 points in the second half including pair of three pointers while Slein added 5 to her game high 13. North hung close with Hobin netting 5 in the third while Amanda Hellmuth added three with Ashley Caldwell and Isabella Thong chipped in with a basket apiece. North had the lead down to 8 before a visitor run made it a final of 56-40. Radzik had the best game of her career offensively finishing with 9 for the game while Hobin tied Slein for game high honors with 13. Caldwell added 6 hard earned points.

North then traveled to Pembroke to tangle with the Titans and were never in it after the first stanza. The visitors fell behind early 7-0 and could not make a run to get back in it, trailing 21-8 after one. Radzik hit a deep three with Caldwell converting a nice pass from Hellmuth for a layup and Thong hitting a face up jump shot. Freshman Forward Bridget Capone was a bright spot all night scoring 4 points, pulling down 6 rebounds and blocking a shot.

North travelled to Plymouth North Tuesday and then entertains Quincy Friday night at 5 p.m. with the Quincy-North Quincy boys game to follow.

Quincy Girls Basketball Defeats Plymouth South; At North Quincy Friday

Q-NQ Boys Basketball Game At 7 P.M.

The Quincy High School girls varsity basketball team improved to 6-5 (4-2 Patriot League) with a 57-39 road win over Plymouth South Jan. 17.

Senior captain Juliana Tracey had 16 points to lead the Presidents' offense. Senior captain Allison McMorro contributed 11 points and grabbed 10 rebounds while Jillian O'Toole added nine points.

Teja Andrews had 17 points and Cat Sullivan had 7 points for the Panthers.

Both teams started slow as Quincy trailed 11 to 9 at the end of the first quarter. The Presidents found their rhythm in the second and took the lead extending it to 24 to 17 at the half with a late run to end the quarter.

Quincy poured in a blistering 21 points in the third connecting on five 3-pointers in the period, four of them from senior captain Juliana Tracey. Julian O'Toole had a strong game for the Presidents chipping in nine points and coming up with five steals in the first half alone. Antenella Ibrahim also gave strong minutes for the Presidents off the bench chipping in four of her own. After a slow start, QHS has now won five of their last six.

Quincy visits in-city rival North Quincy Friday night at 5 p.m.

NQ, Norwell Skate To 4-4 Tie

By TOM JOYCE

The North Quincy High boys' hockey team got a point in the standings on Monday afternoon, but it was not what they wanted.

The Red Raiders hosted the Norwell Clippers, a fellow Division 3 team with a strong record (5-2-3). Although the Red Raiders held a two-goal advantage headed into the final period of the contest, Norwell made a comeback and the game ended as a 4-4 tie. With the tie, the Red Raiders moved to 3-5-3 on the season.

"We threw up on ourselves," Red Raiders head coach Matt Gibbons said. "We didn't play well at all. We played well for maybe the last five minutes of that second period. We had a couple of goals, but then we're up 4-2 going into the third period of a game we had to have.

"If we have any aspirations of playing plus 20 games here in the tournament, then we needed to win this game," Gibbons said. "To lay an egg like we did in the third period, it wasn't pretty."

The Red Raiders struck first in the contest. John Lynch sniped in a goal into the top left corner of the Norwell net with 4:37 remaining in the first period. Cormac Flaherty had the assist on the score.

Three minutes later, Norwell tied the game at one apiece, finding an opening on the right side of the net.

Although the Red Raiders would go on to outscore Norwell 3-1 in the second period, they did not strike first in it. Less than a minute into it, Norwell netted a shorthanded goal, taking a 2-1 lead. It was the first of two short-handed goals they would score in the game.

However, just 52 seconds later with 13:25 remaining, the Red Raiders answered, tying the game back up at two. Mike Izzo scored a power play goal and Lucas Hoodley and Flaherty had the assists.

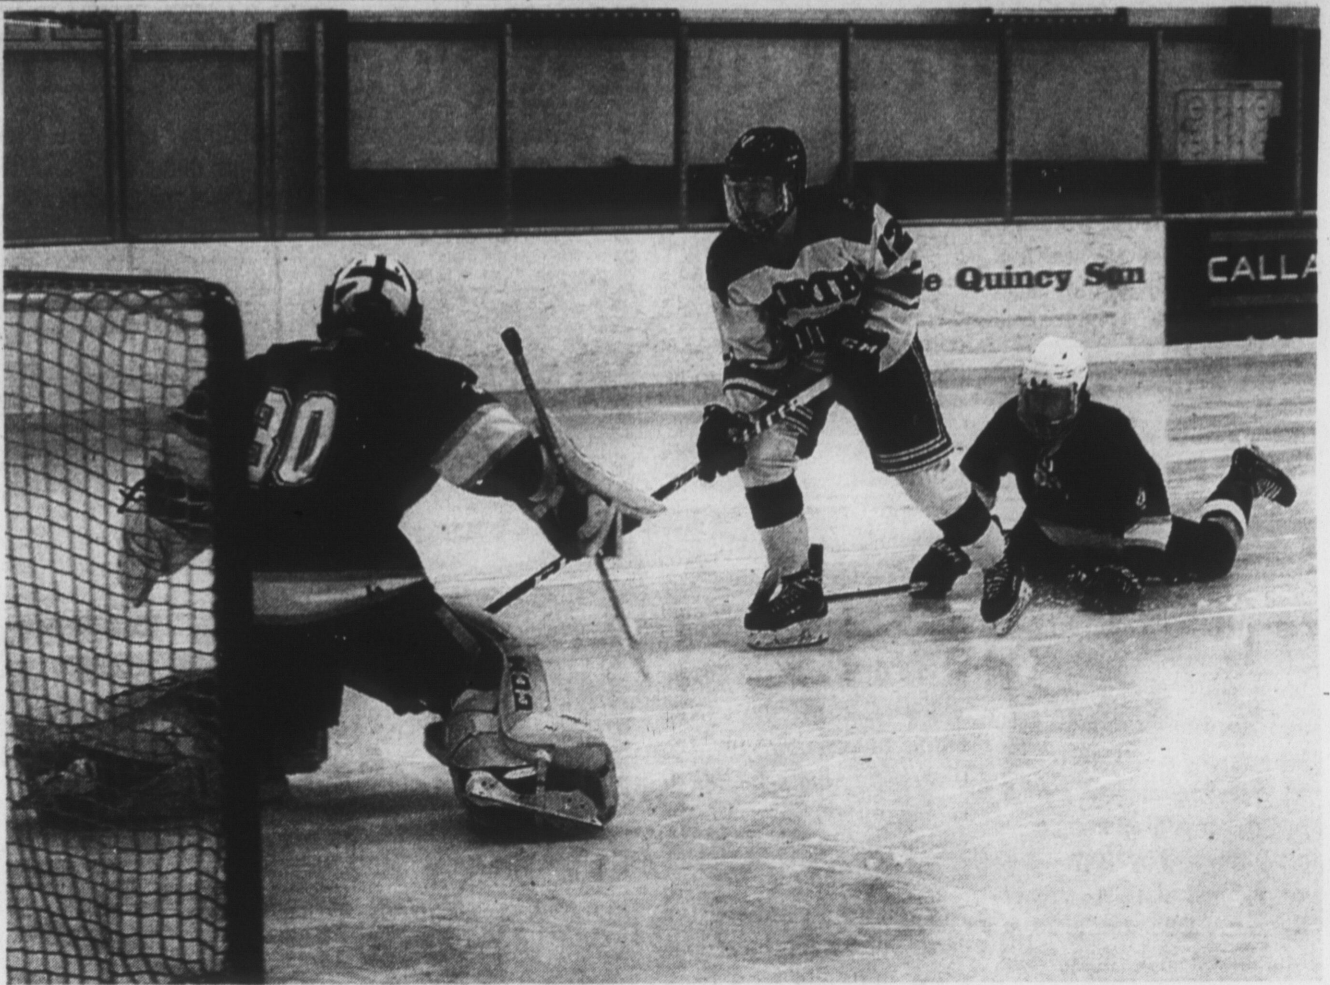

Towards the end of the period, the team started to pull ahead. With 1:11 remaining, Ronan Kelly rifled in the go-ahead goal with a slap shot on a power play. Lynch and Hoodley had assists on the goal, then 25 seconds later, Kevin Salmonowich found the back of the net on a North Quincy rush with the left side of the net left undefended by Norwell. This gave the team a 4-2 edge.

Ultimately, the Red Raiders would not protect the lead. With 7:56 remaining, Norwell pulled within a goal, 4-3 as they got a two-man fast break and scored their second shorthanded goal of the game.

Then, with 1:27 remaining, the team netted the game-tying goal on a second chance scoring opportunity. Initially, goaltender Asher Wines made a tough save to prevent Norwell from scoring, but a few seconds later, one of their forwards tapped in the loose puck, capitalizing on a second chance opportunity.

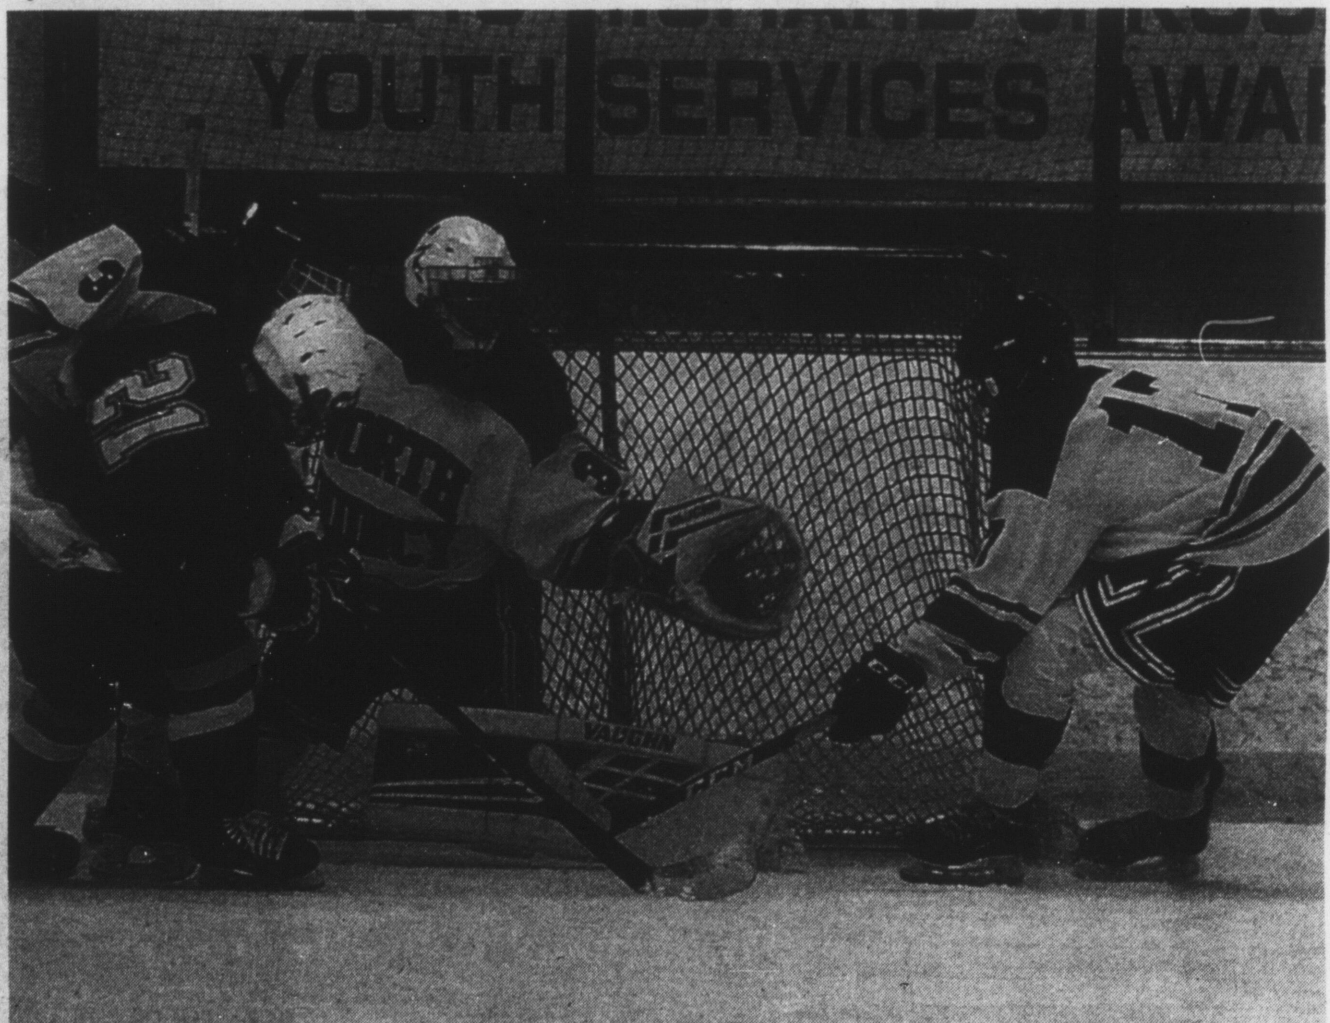

"That was a great play by Norwell, but we shouldn't have been in that position," Gibbons said. "The other three were completely our short-handed and the other one was our fault. We can't clear a puck out. When you start doing that stuff and making those errors, you can't win."

After that, the Red Raiders had a few shots down in Norwell territory, but none of them landed. As a result, the game ended in a tie.

For the Red Raiders, not all ties are created equal, however. On Saturday, Jan. 18, the team's first game back since senior captain and forward Connor Kulig suffered a severe injury against Scituate on Jan. 8 that has kept him in the hospital since, they had a 2-2 tie against the Marshfield Rams. A Division 1 team, Marshfield has made Super 8 appearances in recent years.

"I told them I was very proud of how they played on Saturday, but it's about consistency," Gibbons said. "But we just gotta be consistent. We can't play like we did on Saturday and then play like this. I think we proved to a lot of people—and hopefully ourselves—that we're a pretty good hockey team. But it's like we take two steps forward and four steps back, and we don't have much time to fix it."

Gibbons said that not having Kulig with the team, a senior captain and forward, has been tough.

"It's a lot," he said. "The whole Connor thing and Mike Izzo losing his father in the same week, it's been a lot on these guys. The whole thing is terrible. The best thing that's happened is the rallying cry of the community, the schools, the teams and the players. The Norwell team just gave us a card. Other teams have done some stuff. It's been humbling at times knowing how many people have reached out and how many people continue to reach out. He thought he'd get some cards from school or something, he didn't expect this. I don't think any of us did. We're just pushing for him. We're hoping he can get back here sooner rather than later."

"The support has been incredible," he added. "I just want to thank everybody for what they've done."

A fund has been set up to help the Kulig family with his medical expenses. It can be found at <https://www.facebook.com/donate/1063201530706217/> or by searching "Medical Fundraiser for Connor Kulig".

QHS Boys Basketball Tops Plymouth South

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High boys' basketball team got off to an electric start in their home contest against the Plymouth South Panthers last Friday night.

After a few minutes of play, the team had a slight edge, but a 15-point unanswered streak from there which lasted for more than a quarter made the difference. Ultimately, Plymouth South would recover enough to avoid a blowout score, but not to win the game. The Presidents took it 52-43 and improved to 2-9 on the season and snapped a four-game losing skid.

"Hopefully we're going to build on it," Presidents' head coach David Parry said. "We're just going to try to take it one step at a time. Some key players stepped up for us, and we just want to keep better each time we step out there. We keep getting better every day."

"We had a hard time identifying their shooters on defense, but all in all the defense is getting better too," he added. "The rebounding look was better."

In the first few minutes of the game, the Presidents held a 6-5 advantage, before their 15-0 run put them up 21-5 about halfway through the second quarter. Initially, Derek Little (8 points) helped the team pull ahead. The big man put up a pair of baskets on second chance scoring opportunities after pulling down offensive rebounds.

The team continued enjoying success inside in the first quarter with a slight size advantage over their opponent. All but one of the seven baskets during the run came from inside the arc. Benny Nguyen (8 points) hit a three with under two minutes left in the first quarter to give the team a 13-5 edge. After one quarter, the Presidents led 17-5.

The team's offensive success slowed down a bit in the second quarter, netting just two baskets in the first four minutes before Plymouth South ended the run. Plymouth South ended it on a fast break. They got a steal and hit a layup, making it a 21-7 game.

Of his team's strong run early, Parry said, "We've been trying to push that. Against Pembroke, we didn't have that same kind of energy early and it haunted us. It's been something we've been trying to drive home with the kids and tonight, I thought they did that well."

The Presidents would lead 27-12 at halftime. Kaan Yanuz (18 points) hit his first three-pointer of the game with 2:31 left in the second quarter and Dyllan Lopes (4 points) sank another with 23 seconds remaining.

Plymouth South would go on to outscore the Presidents by six points in the second half. They started it off strong, hitting back-to-back baskets before the Presidents responded. However, Yanuz quickly put up five points—one on a three-pointer and the other from two-point range, making it 32-16 with 6:32 remaining in the third quarter.

During the quarter, Plymouth South would go on to outscore the Presidents by five points 16-11. At the end of the quarter, the Presidents held a 38-28 advantage.

The Presidents enjoyed some offensive success in the fourth quarter, nixing their opponent's chances of making a comeback. However, Plymouth South would score one more point than them in the final quarter.

Yanuz set the pace to start the quarter, hitting a three-pointer 90 seconds in to put the Presidents up by 13 points as the team continued playing tough defense. With 3:34 remaining, Plymouth South once again pulled within 10 points 44-34 after making a pair of three-pointers in a 27 second span.

The closest that Plymouth South would come is within eight points. The team hit a pair of free throws with 3:04 remaining to get there. However, Nguyen gave the Presidents some breathing room as he got a breakaway and hit a layup with 2:16 remaining.

Offensively, the Presidents had a spread out scoring effort in the bout. They had eight different players score for them.

"That's what we want," Parry said. "We just don't have that prolific scorer. But if everyone is stepping up and putting up six points or eight points, that's hard to defend against. It's good to be able to spread the ball around."

Moving forward after the win, Parry said his team still has plenty of work to do.

"We've got to start playing defense," he said. "I think we have to execute some of our offense a little better. We definitely would've liked to have picked up a few more wins by now, but we're coming along. The wins, they're coming."

Quincy will visit North Quincy Friday night in the second game of a in-city hoop doubleheader. The girls teams will play at 5 p.m. followed by the boys game at 7 p.m. It will be the first meeting of the season between the Presidents and Red Raiders.

Maggie Lynch (4 Goals) Sparks QNQ To First Win

By TOM JOYCE

Put one in the win column for the Quincy/North Quincy High girls' hockey co-op.

QNQ shined offensively, defensive and in net in their home bout against the Framingham Flyers on Monday afternoon. Facing off against another younger team, QNQ skated their way to a 5-2 victory. Sparking the offense was Maggie Lynch who scored four goals. With the win, the team improved to 1-7-2 on the season.

"I was just telling the girls the nicest part of the game was the two, not the five," QNQ head coach Jeff Craig said. "We've done a nice job of putting the puck in the net this year, but it was really nice to see the team defense and goaltending."

"We've been working hard all year," he added. "The girls have been competing. We've been up against it a bit, but we've been competing. I told them we'd get there. I'm hoping in the second half of the season we get more of what we got today."

QNQ struck first in the contest, going up 1-0 with 11:30 left in the first period. With a scrum surrounding the net, freshman forward Maggie Lynch found the loose puck and tapped it in, giving her team the early lead. Her goal was assisted by sophomore forward Orla O'Driscoll, who had three assists in the win.

About a minute later, Lynch doubled the team's lead. She created an opening, broke ahead of the defense and gave the team a 2-0 lead with 10:02 left in the period.

Framingham responded with a goal with 2:35 remaining in the period. They scored on a fast break, but this would not stop QNQ's momentum.

Lynch netted a pair of goals in the second period, giving QNQ a 4-1 lead with 5:33 remaining. The first came with 11:40 remaining as she faked out the opposing goaltender. First she looked left, then she shot right. Then, about six minutes later, she got her fourth goal of the game on a breakaway.

Late in the second, the teams traded goals. With 26.6 seconds remaining, Framingham pulled within two goals, capitalizing on a second chance scoring opportunity as one of their forwards found the loose puck. However, QNQ would lead 5-2 after two periods because sophomore forward Maddie Bailey scored with 10.7 seconds remaining. Lynch assisted on the goal as she deked out a Framingham defender and passed backwards, setting up the score out in front of the net. It marked Bailey's first goal of the season — on her birthday no less.

"It's good. We talk about that all the time: we're better when we're unselfish. We have some talented players, but we're better when we use each other," Craig said. Both teams played tough defense for much of the third period. Unable to score, Framingham called a timeout with 2:14 left to play to try to draw something off with a faceoff about to happen in their territory.

In the win, QNQ received a strong performance in net from their goaltender Hailey Concannon. It came in the freshman's third career varsity start in net. She has been the team's starting goaltender since North Quincy High boys' hockey senior forward Connor Kulig suffered a severe injury against Scituate on Jan. 8. QNQ's starting goaltender junior Emma Ford — a friend of Connor — has been spending time with him in the hospital and has been unavailable to play.

Craig also said his team received a strong performance from its second line on offense in the win, featuring eighth grader Avery Kennedy and freshmen Lindsey Packard and Abby Newton. Prior to this season, Newton had never played hockey before; five months ago, she was a competitive figure skater.

"She's been so important for our team," Craig said. "That whole second line is. They go out there and grind. It's been amazing to see how well she does out there."

Additionally, Concannon had never played goalie prior to this season. That said, one of QNQ's major focuses this season has been player development.

"It can be challenging, but it can also be rewarding to see that you can do that," Craig said. "I said to Hailey, 'did you think you'd be doing this four months ago when I had that conversation with you? And of course she had a big smile on her face. You see bigger results in ability when you're starting from scratch. It's pretty cool."

Following the win, Craig said his team is thrilled — and they are optimistic at the midway point in their season.

"They're excited," he said. "They've been working hard all year, and it's been tough if you don't see immediate results as a young team playing strong teams. We have an unbelievable group of kids. They all get along. They're all positive. You wouldn't know that we haven't been winning with this group. We have such a great group of kids. It makes my job a lot easier."

On Friday, Jan. 10, at approximately 4:30 p.m., Officer Foley and his K9 partner were on routine patrol when he observed a male known to him from past crimes and drug activity drive by him at the intersection of Water Street and Franklin Street. The officer also noted the male was driving the same vehicle as he was the night of New Year's Day with a suspended license.

The officer focused on this male because on that night, the male was seen leaving the Quincy emergency room after he and another male had dragged an unconscious female into the ER. Once inside the ER, the two males left her on the floor and fled. (The female was suffering from an opioid overdose.)

A short time later Detective Dabilis spotted the suspect vehicle on Quarry Street and when he attempted to pull it over, the male refused to stop and sped off on route 93 north. Officer Foley knew that a warrant had been applied for against the male for failing to stop for a police officer and also knew his license was suspended. After checking with Communications, it was determined the male's license was still suspended but there were no outstanding warrants.

Officer Foley then requested back-up as he followed the suspect vehicle to a driveway on Buckley Street. The officer activated his blue lights and siren, then approached the vehicle and placed the driver under arrest for operating after license suspension. The registered owner of the vehicle was seated in the front passenger seat and was advised not to move. Seconds later Officer Paccioretti arrived on scene and stood by while Officer Foley made sure the male under arrest had no weapons on him prior to being placed into a police vehicle for transport.

After being advised of his Miranda rights, the male said he understood. When asked why he failed to stop for police the night of Jan. 1st, the male responded, "That wasn't me - that was someone else."

Detective Bossart arrived on scene and began speaking with the male while Officer Foley interviewed the passenger. She said she was not aware the male didn't have a license and had been involved in a past failure to stop incident with her vehicle. Based on the totality of the circumstances, the officer directed his canine partner, Charlie, to sniff the free air around the male and the female as well as the vehicle. Charlie showed no alert to the male, the female or the vehicle, but showed a positive alert to a drug odor emanating from a cigarette pack that was on the male. Inside the pack, next to the cigarettes, were two small blue pills marked "V 2531" and a portion of a cut straw.

Officer Foley recognized the pills to be Clonazepam which are a class C controlled substance. The clear cut plastic straw contained white residue inside which is used to snort powdered drugs. Both were seized as evidence.

The male told Detective Bossart it was someone else driving the vehicle on Jan. 1st, but the detective confronted him by stating the male was wearing the same exact clothing today as the night of the failure to stop incident (as captured on Quincy ER surveillance video). He then admitted to driving the vehicle from Martensen Street to the Quincy ER to drop the female off and then headed to his aunt's house in Dorchester. The male then said another male picked up the female after she was cleared by doctors and the other male had changed his clothes into the exact same clothes that he was wearing, adding that he lent the clothes to the other male!

This explanation for the clothing was not believable and still did not explain why detectives observed the male operating the vehicle just prior to the failure to stop incident. The male, a 34-year-old Quincy resident, was booked for suspension and possession of a Class C substance. The analysis of the drugs also showed the presence of Fentanyl, a Class A substance. The tablets were identified as 1mg Clonazepam tablets, a Class C substance. One count of possession class A (Fentanyl) subsequent offense was added. Nice Work!

ROBOCALL UPDATE

The FTC recently took action against robocall scammers asking victims to take a phone survey with the promise of two free tickets to go on a cruise. For most, it makes no sense!

The call was a robocall and the tickets are not going to be free if they even exist. The FTC charged these scammers for making millions of illegal robocalls and dialed numbers that were on the National Do Not Call Registry. The callers also faked caller ID information so it appeared that their call was coming from a local number.

After the victim took the phone survey, they were transferred to a live telemarketer who tried to get them to pay for cruise extensions, upgrades, plus $59 in associated port taxes and fees for each person on the cruise. The law states that Robocalls trying to sell you something are illegal unless a company has your written permission to call.

So, simply stated, any Robocall you get is going to be illegal. (Why would anyone give these scammers written permission?)

As always,

- Hang up. Don't press any numbers. The recording might say that pressing a number will let you speak to a live operator or remove you from their call list, but it might lead to more robocalls, instead.

- Report it to the FTC at donotcall.gov. The FTC takes the phone numbers you report and releases them to the public each business day. This helps phone carriers and other partners that are working on call-blocking solutions. Your reports also help law enforcement identify the people behind the illegal calls.

To get fewer illegal robocalls, look into call-blocking solutions. Learn more about unwanted calls at ftc.gov/calls.

A funeral Mass for Ruth M. (Arnold) Welby, 78, of Quincy and formerly of South Boston, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Welby died peacefully after a long illness on Jan. 17.

Born in Boston, she was a daughter of the late Robert Day Arnold and Theresa Veronica (Powers). Raised in South Boston, "Ruthie" or "Roo" as she was affectionately known, attended St. Augustine Catholic School where she met many wonderful friends, many of whom have remained close to this day. It was in high school when she first laid eyes on Southie High's Eddie Welby. Shortly after high school, she and the love of her life, Edward Joseph Welby were married, and spent 30 wonderful years together until his passing in 1995. Her song for him "Eddie My Love" by the Teen Queens will always be a family favorite.

Mrs. Welby loved people, laughing, dancing and singing. Her hands were rarely still, especially when involved in one of her many sewing projects. She was a talented seamstress making everything from her kids' clothes and personalized blankets, to gorgeous window treatments and wedding dresses. Her greatest joy in life was to be surrounded by children.

Mrs. Welby, the greatest mother in all the land, always said she cherished every moment raising her six beautiful children. She was the devoted mother of Linda Bunn and her husband Austin, Jean Peugh, Joan Gillespie and her husband Donald, Edward Welby and his wife Karyn, Joseph Welby and his wife Alicia, and the late Lisa Welby-Gusmini. She was the proud and loving "Mimi" of Dominic and Christopher Gusmini, Donald and his wife Jen, Amanda and her fiancé Andrew Wernig, Madison Gillespie, Devin and his wife Leah, Cullen and Jason Peugh, Ava and Quincy Bunn, Claire, Grace, Cassidy and Maeve Welby, and Avery and Connor Welby. She was the sister of Robert Arnold and his wife Pat, Dorothy Geraghty and her husband Jack, Paul Arnold and his wife Gerri, and is survived by many nieces, nephews and loving friends.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Mixed signals could create problems. Make sure your views are presented clearly, and insist others do the same. Don't let an unanswered question go by without a full explanation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Financial pressures ease, allowing for more budget flexibility. But as the money-wise Bovine will appreciate, thrift still beats out splurging. Expect news from someone special.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Getting things done is what you do so well. But be careful not to overtax your energy reserves. Take time out to relax or to do something different to help keep them at optimum levels.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This is a good time to satisfy the Moon Child's growing sense of wanderlust. Choose a really special place to go to, with a very special person to share it all with you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You love being in the spotlight. But be careful it doesn't blind you to the truth behind a seemingly wonderful opportunity. Look closer and you might be sadly surprised at what you find.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Isn't it time to take a break from your hectic schedule? Sure it is. And the sooner you do, the sooner you can return fresh and more than ready to take on all those new projects.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A recent family incident can help bring everyone closer, and there's no one who's better at making that happen than you. Accept (indeed, insist on!) help from others to get things off and running.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Long-held habits are often difficult to break. But the change from how you always did things to how you can do them now can be liberating. So, be flexible and give it a try.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Someone you met in your professional world last year and thought you would never hear from again could make a sudden reappearance in your life, along with an interesting offer.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Once again, you delight everyone by coming up with a solution for a problem that actually works. On another note, it's not too early to get started on those travel plans.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Before you go ahead with finalizing your plans for your new project, check them over to see if you can make some improvements or if you can find ways to cut costs.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The Fabulous Fish might have been out of the social swim for too long, and it's time you plunge back in. Reinforce your old friendships and be open to starting new ones.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your creative talents help bring beauty to the world and the people in it. On their behalf, thank you.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Once upon a time in the mythical kingdom of Las Vegas, superstars' names lit up the Vegas Strip in neon lights. Stars like Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., Elvis Presley, Prince, Wayne Newton, Tom Jones and Barbra Streisand, and the great comics like Redd Foxx, Phyllis Diller, Totie Fields and Rich Little. Sinatra left us at age 82 in 1998, Dean Martin at 78 in 1995, Sammy Davis 64 in 1990, Elvis 42 in 1977 and Prince 57 in 2016. Great stars such as Rich Little, 81, Wayne Newton, 77, Tom Jones, 79, and Barbra Streisand, 77, hardly appear anymore.

They have been replaced by pop singers, classic-rock acts and country superstars: Santana, Jan. 22-Feb. 1; Foreigner, Jan. 24-Feb. 1; Van Morrison, Jan. 31-Feb. 8; The Doobie Brothers, Feb. 7-22; Chicago, Feb. 28-March 14. The singers include Keith Urban, January-November; Shania Twain, March 13-28; Gwen Stefani, Feb. 7-22; Mariah Carey, Feb. 14-29; Christina Aguilera, Feb. 27-March 7; Rod Stewart, March 6-21; Kelly Clarkson, April 1-11; Lady Gaga, April 30-May 16; Sting, May 22-June 6; and showgirl replacements in RuPaul's Drag Race Live, Jan. 30-Aug. 1.

Once I drove from Los Angeles to Las Vegas, across the desert, during 100 degree heat, in July 1969, for Elvis Presley's grand opening in Vegas. He gave the most spell-binding show ever seen to this day. But you couldn't get close to Elvis because he had six or eight guys called The Memphis Mafia who were his bodyguards and surrounded him wherever he went.

I knew his chauffeur, and one night I tore a $100 bill in half and gave it to him, saying he could have the other half if he'd let me know when Elvis was going somewhere without his bodyguards. I returned to L.A., and five days later he called and promised me that The King was going on a secret date that Saturday, alone. I drove across the desert again, without air conditioning, and arrived at the secret exit, which was like a "Star Wars" location without windows and doors. I gave him the other half of the $100 and waited for Elvis.

Earlier at his press conference, I had asked Elvis, "As the survivor of twins, some of your closest friends say you act like one twin on stage and the other off stage, can you comment?" He was stunned and offered, "I've often wondered about that!" My frontpage Vegas newspaper story read, "Elvis Presley, One Man or Two People."

When he finally came out, I asked to photograph him and he said, "Great story man, I really liked it!" I was thrilled. They'll never be a Vegas like that again!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Whale Oil Lamp --- Many 18th-century lamps used oil to get light. If whale oil was not available, the lamps could use olive oil. The oil was kept in a reservoir, usually metal, that had three or four burners with wicks. Several were needed to get enough light. A group of these lamps also had reflectors on a pole, usually shaped like a moth with spread wings. The pole held the needed tools, wick cutters, wick picks and snuffing caps, and could raise and lower the reflector to direct the light. Many were made of brass to withstand heat, and silver was added for decoration where it would not melt. This late-19th-century silver-plated lamp that burned fat has it all -- a silver-plated reflector brass pole, tools, moth reflector and a finial.

Q: I have a 1967 Barbie and Ken wedding set in the original unopened (but not perfect) box. It was made by Mattel. How do I get information on the value of this set, and how could I sell it?

A: Quite a few Barbie bride dolls have been made since Barbie was introduced in 1959. Your wedding set is the 1964-1965 Barbie Wedding Party Gift Set (No. 1017) by Mattel. It is a set of four dolls dressed in wedding finery, which originally sold from about $14 to $20. The set includes a bubble-cut Barbie doll (with blond, brunette or tiffany hair) in the outfit called "Bride's Dream" (No. 947); a painted-head Ken doll (in blond or brunette) in "Tuxedo" (No. 7897); a Midge doll (with brunette or red hair) in "Orange Blossom"

(No. 987); and a Skipper doll (with blond, brunette or red hair) in "Flower Girl" (No. 1904). The set came with a wire stand for each doll and a pillow with a wedding ring on it, which was exclusive to this set. Many Barbie and friends gift sets were offered between 1960 and 1974. Some were department-store exclusives. When found "mint in the box," they are some of the priciest and hardest-to-find Barbie items. Theriault's, an auction company in Annapolis, Maryland, specializes in auctioning dolls and often sells Barbie and accessories. A wedding set like yours sold at Theriault's for $1,100 in 2009.

TIP: Candle wax on your antique metal candlesticks? Put them in the freezer. After a few hours, the wax will easily flake off. If there is a large lump of wax in the candle cup, run hot water on the stick until the wax melts. Do not let water get into the hollow.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was noted Irish author and wit Oscar Wilde who made the following sage observation: "There are only two tragedies in life: one is not getting what one wants, and the other is getting it."

* The very first CD of a musical recording was made in 1982. The album was "The Visitors" by Swedish pop superstars ABBA.

* Immigrants arriving at New York's Ellis Island in the early years (1892-1920s) were given bananas to eat. Many had never seen a banana and didn't know how to eat one -- some ate the whole thing, peel and all.

* In the small African nation of Swaziland, the Civil Aviation Authority has set a ceiling of 500 feet on light aircraft. These aircraft, as well as kites and remote controlled toys, are not allowed to go above that limit. Also included in the category of light aircraft are broomsticks. Any witch who flies on a broomstick above that limit is subject to a fine of more than $50,000 and possible arrest.

* If you're thinking about moving to another country, you might want to consider Finland. In that country, employees are offered, on average, 44 paid vacation days every year. Of course, you might want to consider that even in the warm southwestern part of the country, winters last about 100 days, with snow covering the ground from mid-October to early May.

* The name of the state of Iowa (unsurprisingly) comes from a Native American language. The original word, "ayuxba," means "sleepy ones."

Thought for the Day: "To be capable of embarrassment is the beginning of moral consciousness. Honor grows from qualms." -- John Leonard

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Before removing a splinter, ice the area. There will be less fussing, and a wooden splinter might absorb some liquid, causing it to swell enough to pop out a bit more.

* "I used the mileage counter in my car to come up with several 2-mile routes for walking. Now I can vary my routine and be assured that I've walked 2 miles, which is my goal. I just drive from my house until I hit a mile on the trip odometer, and then I walk to that spot and back." -- J.L. in Nevada

* Use a tea infuser ball for aromatherapy. Apply several drops of essential oils to a cotton ball and place it inside the infuser basket. Then simply hang it to distribute the scent. You can hang it from a light bulb or even in front of the air handler for your air conditioning or heating intake.

* "If you're looking to give yourself a bit of traction on icy sidewalks, be careful what you use. While kitty litter is a much-recommended solution, when it melts, you're left with a slippery pile of clay. Salt can de-ice a sidewalk, but it definitely will kill plants, so be precise, and don't use too much of either. I carry a baggie of sand in my bag and keep a small bucket for the steps. It's not perfect, but it works." -- T. in Pennsylvania

* "The knob came off my pot lid because it cracked. I grabbed a wine cork and threaded it on the screw. It stays in place and is never hot when I need to remove the top. Plus it looks cute." -- E.T. in Alabama

CONNOR KULIG, a senior captain on the North Quincy High School varsity hockey team, in action in a game earlier this season. Connor suffered a severe neck injury in a hockey game Jan. 8 against Scituate. The progress of his recovery is "exceeding expectations," his mother, Dawn, told the Sun.

A MOTHER'S EMBRACE - Dawn Kulig and her son, Connor, hug one another in his room at Children's Hospital in Boston. Connor suffered a severe neck injury playing hockey Jan. 8. Connor underwent nearly five hours of surgery to repair his spine after the injury. He was soon making miraculous progress as movement of his extremities returned little by little. One week later, he stood up by himself and also took a few steps.

road ahead. He is definitely exceeding expectations at this time and thankfully has regained mobility and is working on balance and fine motor skills and a lot of the little day-to-day things we take for granted, such as dressing.

"He is not independent as yet," she continued. "He will be having a second neck surgery in the near future. They are closely monitoring his vertebral artery that was dissected during the trauma and based on the stability of it, an additional surgery will follow to better stabilize his neck."

"We have everything to be grateful for and I attribute it to the surgical/medical care and God answering our prayers, without a doubt."

News of Connor's injury quickly spread across the close-knit North Quincy High School community and beyond thanks in part to social media. Expressions of support have come from professional hockey players including Boston Bruin Charlie Coyle, a Weymouth native, who reached out via Twitter. Connor's aunt and Dawn's sister, Anne, set up an online fund to help with the young man's medical expenses. The fund has reached more than $48,000 of its $50,000 goal as of Monday. A MERE WEEK after undergoing surgery to repair a fractured and dislocated cervical vertebrae, Connor Kulig takes a few steps with the help of friend at Children's Hospital in Boston.

Connor Kulig, a senior who will graduate with his classmates in June as a member of the Class of 2020, has been accepted to Mass Maritime Academy. Dawn said the outpouring of prayer, love and support is immeasurable as Connor continues to heal from his injury.

"The effects are seen in Connor's healing," Dawn told the Sun. "It has given us both strength.

"People in our local community have been incredibly supportive and the support spans the country."

Dawn has been interviewed by numerous news organizations about Connor which she said gives her the opportunity to thank everyone who has helped the family since her son's injury.

"When asked 'what is the first thing you want to do when you get out of the hospital, Connor?' He replied

'hug every single person that helped us.'

"That is how we both feel. We are so incredibly grateful," to everyone who has shown support and compassion to Connor and the Kulig family, Dawn said.

Others who have reached out include North Quincy High School, Mayor Thomas Koch, Quincy Youth Hockey and Travis Roy, the former Boston University hockey player who was left paralyzed when he hit the boards playing his first collegiate hockey game in 1995. Since that accident, Roy has regained movement in his right arm and established a foundation to help spinal cord injury survivors and to fund research into a cure.

Roy is among the people and athletes that have experienced spinal cord injuries who have contacted Connor and the Kulig family.

"Everyone has given us hope," Dawn said.
